SAMUEL SCHWARTZBARD was acquitted and set free in Paris yesterday after confessing in open court he had murdered Petlura, whose men had murdered many Jews in pogroms in the Ukraine.

THE wife of a Russian priest testified confirming the statements of many others that her husband, unable to bear the screams of the unhappy pogrom victims, rushed out to help them, saw Petlura's soldiers killing them, and was himself murdered.

WILLIN SCHWARTZBARD, who fought well in the French army, was freed, the crowd in the court room shouted "Vive La Republique" and "Vive Schwartzbard." Nothing surprising about that decision, or that shouting.

ANOTHER step in travel by air. German and British dirigibles, each of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity, will race around the world next year.

They expect to make the trip in twelve days, with two stops for fuel. That makes the world smaller than it was, and would interest Jules Verne. The Germans, with new light Diesel engines in their dirigibles, will surprise the world.

IN America, producing too much oil, we seek a way to limit waste of power and wealth. The British Empire worries about too many diamonds produced in South Africa and elsewhere. Great Britain controls the diamond market and seeks a way to prevent digging so many diamonds, to keep up prices.

As the world gets smaller and nations, empires and business units get bigger there will have to be much arbitrary regulating.

REAR ADMIRAL PLUNKETT objected to high power methods of Red Cross collecting in Brooklyn's navy yard, where employes get no more than they need to live. Thereupon Red Cross people said they would do as they chose, because President Coolidge is the head of the Red Cross.

They will learn from President Coolidge that he does not approve such talk.

THE fact that the President is head of the Red Cross is all the more reason for NOT allowing government employes to be "held up" or "shaken down," in the language of the day. Those that give to the Red Cross should give because they want to. No high powered, high salaried collectors should be allowed to use the name of the President to force "donations" from underpaid government employes.

Admiral Plunkett should have his Marines firmly and painlessly throw the collecting gentlemen out.

HISTORY repeats itself sadly. Your mind's eye sees a shipload of beautiful Greek youths and maidens sent to Crete to appease various appetites of the dreadful Minetaur, half man, half bull. You shudder.

In Vienna, last Tuesday, you might have seen a first-class carriage on Europe's crack express train, delivering at the station eleven big anthropoid apes, called by evolutionists our distant cousins.

THESE poor creatures traveling as first-class passengers from Africa, across the Mediterranean and on to Vienna, will be used by Dr. Voronoff to restore youth to aged Viennese gentlemen.

These higher "primates," chimpanzees or gorillas, are not exactly Greek youths or maidens. But they deserve pity, sacrificed to keep worthless old men alive, and foolish.

She's For Our Girls

Ruth Elder Flies to Spain

WHY THE FUSS

The lady with the Roosevelt gesture is Mrs. Douglas Robinson, sister of Theodore Roosevelt, who asks: "Why do people worry about the girl of today?"

WANT REALITY

But, she goes on to explain: "It is only her desire to become effective, do real things and accomplish the worth-while that makes her seem that way." She is keenly interested in youth.

HOLDS TO "T. R.'S" IDEALS

Deploring diversion of money appropriated for navy cruisers Mrs. Robinson, here to speak at the Navy Day seventh annual banquet of the Roosevelt commemoration Society of Western Pennsylvania, will emphasize her brother's ideals.

SOUGHT EFFICIENCY

"He was interested in seeing the Navy a great arm of national defense, and it was its efficiency that piqued his interest," declared Mrs. Robinson.

BULLETIN.

MADRID, Spain, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Ruth Elder, American girl aviatrix; George Haldeman, her co-pilot, and half a dozen companions in the Portuguese plane that brought them from Lisbon today, were endangered when one of the machine's three motors failed about 90 miles out of Madrid.

Miss Elder, who drove the plane part of the time, alternating with the regular pilot, said the accident to the plane was "of no importance" because of the extra motors, although without them "we would have been killed, for it would have been impossible to glide to a landing."

MADRID, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Ruth Elder, American aviatrix, and her co-pilot, Capt. George W. Haldeman, arrived here in a Junkers plane from Lisbon at 2:16 p. m.

The American fliers were met by American Ambassador Ogden Hammond and the commanding officer of the Spanish aviation service.

After the reception she and Capt. Haldeman went to the American embassy where they will be guests until their expected departure for France.

They will continue on to Paris and then plan to board the steamship Mauretania for home, sailing Saturday.

Miss Elder, who had been forced to take to her bed in Lisbon yesterday because of a mild attack of influenza, appeared happy and in good health, although very tired. She was still clothed in the tan knickers, sport shoes and sweater which she wore on the flight from New York which ended several hundred miles in the sea off the Azores.

The plans of the American fliers call for their departure for Bayonne, France, by express train tonight and there continuing on to Paris by airplane tomorrow. Then they hope to board the Mauretania on Saturday.

MINISTERS SAY DRY LAW FAILS

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Twenty-five hundred clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, by a vote of almost two to one, have recorded their belief that prohibition is a failure, it is announced by the Rev. Dr. Charles Livingston, member of the board of directors of the National Episcopal Church Temperance Society.

A nation-wide poll of the liquor question, conducted by the society, showed that the ministers, as individuals, voted prohibition a failure, that it has had sufficient trial, that the Volstead act should be modified,

BALM LOST, RETURNS TO TEACH

Unsuccessful in a heart balm suit waged in the courts at Columbus, O., Miss Eva M. Crooks, 611 Iroquois Apartments, Forbes street, was back home today preparing to resume her duties tomorrow as teacher of a special class in the East Street Public School, North Side.

Miss Crooks asked $15,000 from Dr. Howard Whitehead, of Columbus, for alleged refusal to carry out an agreement to wed. The jury, on instructions of the court, returned a verdict of no damages. The court held that an ante-nuptial agreement for the division of Dr. Whitehead's property was not binding, as it was verbal.

Can't Find King

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27.—William L. King, missing vice crusader, who a month ago left the Citizens' League of Pittsburgh, Pa., flat and wondering, is believed on his way to the Orient via some obscure Mexican port.

Investigation by police here revealed that King checked out of the Bellevue Hotel here Tuesday.

His movements from then on are a veiled secret.

Authorities here point out that the crusader could have slipped across the border into Mexico, boarded a steamer, many of which will willingly overlook such minor details as passports for a proper monetary consideration, and headed for the

Ferreira declares that he personally saw a shark attack one man and that the waters about the sinking Italian liner were reddened apparently by the blood of others attacked by sharks.

Ferreira's story was a graphic one of the panic which followed the explosions on board the ship,

OIL PROSECUTION SHOWS FALL RECEIVED BONDS

TESTIMONY AT PROBE BANNED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Getting to the heart of its case, the government today presented testimony in the Teapot Dome trial that $90,000 in Liberty bonds had been placed in a safety box held in the name of Albert B. Fall after the leasing of Teapot Dome to Harry F. Sinclair, and that huge debts of Fall's New Mexico ranch had been paid off about the same time.

The $90,000 in bonds was placed with the First National Bank of Pueblo, Col., by M. T. Everhart, Fall's brother-in-law, after a trip east, Z. T. Hale, assistant cashier of the bank, testified. Then the government presented the books of Fall's Tres Ritos ranch, in which Everhart also was interested, and developed testimony that holders of $140,000 in notes had been paid off with bonds other than the $90,000 Everhart had deposited.

Hale's testimony followed a ruling by the court that Sinclair's sworn testimony evidence before the Senate Oil Investigation Committee could not be used against him, but that voluntary statements might be offered. The point at issue was whether Sinclair went to Fall's ranch prior to leasing the naval oil reserve from the former secretary of the Interior for the purpose of discussing the deal.

Orient well away from extradition to serve as a government and state witness in nearly 200 alleged vice den cases pending in Allegheny county and federal courts.

King also was reported to have visited Reno to contest a divorce suit Mrs. King was understood to have contemplated. King also was said to have spent some time here.

Mrs. King, however, left Reno Saturday after living there several weeks without filing a divorce action. It was understood that she planned to return to her former home in Iowa.

William L. King, missing Citizens' League executive secretary, may be brought back to Pittsburgh by Federal authorities if he fails to return voluntarily.

Most of the Citizens' League cases can be prosecuted successfully without his assistance, but the Federal cases against "Jakie" Klein and "Dopey" Davis are based on charges in which King is the star witness and without his testimony could not stand, officials say.

No intimation that these cases, an outgrowth of the alleged attempt to bribe King to leave town and thereby wreck the Citizens' League anti-vice program, would be dropped was forthcoming from Federal authorities yesterday.

"When the government wants a witness it has facilities for finding him and usually does," was Federal Attorney John D. Meyer's comment this morning when the suggestion was made that King's absence might balk the conspiracy cases.

With reference to the liquor raid cases in which the Federal authorities co-operated Administrator John D. Pennington said the prohibition agents themselves seized liquor in the places raided, that this was sufficient evidence to prove the possession charges, but that evidence might be needed in some cases from King or his operatives to prove the sale charges contained in information made by them.

WON'T "COVER UP"

King admitted he took $300 from Klein the first time he disappeared, and this, it was pointed out, would be sufficient ground to prosecute King along with the others if federal authorities wished to do so. Klein claims he paid King $22,500 to leave the city.

The outstanding developments in the latest disappearance of King and the wife he married during his first absence from Pittsburgh, were expressions from the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, president of the Citizens' League, that the league had no disposition to "cover up" for King; that he would be required to make a detailed explanation of his recent actions and probably would not be retained as the Citizens' League's crusader.

Dr. Orr explained that the prosecution of many of the league's cases would go forward according to schedule, and that no particular difficulty was expected to develop as a result of the fact that King is in possession of the key to the safe deposit vault in which the evidence is stored. A court order probably would be required to get possession of the contents of the safe deposit box if King does not return before the cases come up in the November grand jury.

King, it was disclosed yesterday, telephoned the Rev. Davis E. Cruea, head of the Anti-Saloon League here, from San Francisco on October 13 intimating he was considering resigning.

T. R.'s Sister Here; Praises Flappers

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

"Teddy's" smile, a warm, friendly personality that makes you feel you have known her all your life—that is Mrs. Douglas Robinson, sister of the beloved Theodore Roosevelt.

To the great T. R., she was sister Corinne. And while his manner of making you feel at ease was a jovial slap on the back, Mrs. Robinson's way is quite as cordial. She grips your hand and begins right away to show a keen personal interest in you and your own work. It is the Roosevelt love for folks.

This is Navy day—chosen as such because it is the anniversary of "Teddy's" birthday. Mrs. Robinson is here to speak this evening at the seventh annual banquet of the Roosevelt Commemoration Society of Western Pennsylvania.

With her blue eyes smiling and white Roosevelt teeth showing in a grin reminiscent of her illustrious brother, Mrs. Robinson paid high tribute to the young girl of today:

"Why are people worried about our girls? Oh, doubtless they have lost a bit of their reserve and are not quite so sheltered as the girl of my day. But it is the desire to become effective that has made them that way.

"I am keenly interested in the younger generation. They amuse me and kindle the fires of memory when I remember how I, too, used to struggle to get out of my shell. The girl of today is not satisfied with the home rut. Down in our hearts, neither were we."

She paused and seemed to be thinking back. Then smiled again:

"I remember one of the last conversations I had with my dear brother. He was in Roosevelt Hospital and the Armistice had just been signed. Theodore said: 'Corinne, when I get well I think I shall go on a tour of the United States talking to the young women.'

"Naturally this surprised me very much. But he explained that he could see how they wanted to do so much during the war, but that they hadn't really been ready. And he said he would urge them to be prepared always to be effective in case their country needed them.

"His idea was that each girl should learn to do one thing well, cook, nurse, typewrite—or something. Then if their country went to war they could offer themselves and feel they were really ready. He spoke of the boys and their military training and said he knew how hard it must be for a woman to want to help so much and feel that she was useless."

Then Mrs. Robinson said:

"Perhaps you would like to know something about my speech tonight. I, myself, scarcely know what I'll say. My talks are always impromptu. But I know I shall bring out something about the importance of the Navy. It was my brother's great ideal."

The Roosevelt jaw asserted itself and she became firm. Her entire manner changed as she went on.

"It was Theodore's great desire to have the Navy an efficient arm of the service. The cruisers for which the money has been appropriated should be built. I do not believe nations can possibly remain at peace all the time. It is most unlikely that we can permanently escape war."

She smiled tolerantly:

"Nations are like children. Competition brings misunderstanding. It is bound to. I am afraid we are making a big, big mistake by not seeing ahead. Preparedness will not bring war any more than greasing a fire engine and having it ready will start a big fire."

A rippling laugh followed an outburst on well-meaning peace societies and things of that sort. Amused, Mrs. Robinson shook her head.

"We have too many societies. They mean well, of course, but my brother used to laugh, too, about all the organizations, taking themselves so seriously and duplicating each other's work."

As tastefully dressed as a girl Mrs. Robinson was stunning in the new shade of blue, her gown and hat matching perfectly. While posing for a picture she laughed:

"I hope no one thinks I am severe as my pictures usually look. Don't I look like a house detective—really?"

Lord, in search of "new ideas" and murdered in Nice.

A goat path leads to the colony, on top of a high mountain near the Mediterranean. Two hours climbing leads to a community of sixty men, women and children, all sunning themselves on the mountain top, wearing no clothing. Dr. Goldberg, German, who has been in prison occasionally, is head of the colony. For every man there are two women, no marriage, no names for the children except "son" and "daughter."

WHEN reporters arrived at the colony, the woman ran to put on clothing.

The unfortunate murdered woman thought she saw something new when she climbed that goat path. She did not.

Darwin saw just such colonies in Patagonia, but the ladies put on no clothing. And you might have seen similar colonies any where on earth, especially on the plateaus of Asia had you been here five hundred thousand years ago.

As for Zarathustra, great man and great thinker, he wouldn't thank you for giving his name to the nude colony.

and the consequent rush to the boats from a vessel sinking with all its lights extinguished.

The captain of the Mosella, which brought survivors into this port today, also told a graphic tale of comingled courage and stark terror.

In a report to the police the Mosella commander stated that he saw Capt. Gugli, of the Principessa Mafalda standing on the bridge as his vessel went down and heard him cry out:

"Viva Italia. Viva Patria."

After the vessel sank, the Mosella captain said he was unable to find any trace of Capt. Gugli.

"It was a horrible spectacle when we arrived on the scene," the captain of the Mosella continued. "There were frantic men, women and children floating all about us. Many women and children seemed to have gone stark mad as they drifted about in the dark night, with fairly high waves tossing them about.

"We had received our first S. O. S. on the night of the twenty-fifth and speeded to the location given and found the vessel already sinking.

"While we stood by and helped in the rescue work, the radio officers of the Principessa Mafalda remained at his post continually sending out S. O. S. messages. The captain of the ship was on the bridge. They stayed on their job until the vessel sank."

Two women, one man and one child were found to be dead when taken aboard the Mosella.

The captain of the Mosella estimates the missing at 400, but his estimates are far beyond those of the Italian embassy in Rio Janeiro and the Brazilian government.

The number of persons lost is still indefinite. While the Italian embassy still estimates but 68 persons missing a re-capitulation of radio advices from rescue ships of survivors is as follows:

Alhena, 451; Formosa, 353; Rossert, 27; Mosella, 24; total, 855.

The Mafalda had a total of 1,258 aboard and, according to these statistics, there are still 403 persons unaccounted for.

It is possible that some ships may have neglected to report the full number of rescued or that survivors have been picked up by vessels rendering no report at all.

There are evidences, however, that the death toll may have been that accepted yesterday as 68, for the Mosella has reported that several of its survivors were dead when taken aboard.

A former member of Flo Ziegfeld's "Kid Boots" company, Ann Morgan Gowans, began her fight for recognition as the wife of the late Alphonse Morgan, millionaire Cleveland lithograph man, when she asked for removal of Percy J. The blonde beauty asked a dower right in the estate on the ground that she was from August, 1926, until Morgan's death, January 26, 1927, his common-law wife.

that the eighteenth amendment should be repealed and that they were willing to co-operate with the society to secure "more practical legislation in the interest of true temperance." Half of 5,000 rectors and curates who were sent questionnaires voted in the survey.

"The Protestant Episcopal church is officially in favor of law observance," said Dr. Livingston in making public the results of the survey, "but our survey shows that the clergy as individuals are not in favor of the Volstead law.

"The answers from the South and West average the same as those from the East. They do not want the saloons, but in the interests of morality they believe prohibition ought to go. Beer has been taken away and distilled poison put in its place.

"When prohibition has been given time to demonstrate what a fallacy it is, its elimination will be easy as well as lasting. The disgust with the law was never so much in evidence as it is now, and it is not confined to any particular section of the country, but it is nation-wide."

A tabulation of the vote in the survey follows:

Is prohibition a success in your locality? Yes, 445; no, 745.

Have we had this law long enough for a fair trial? Yes, 950; no, 621.

Regardless of one's attitude toward the use of liquor, do you believe a prohibition law offers the best solution of the problem of 'intemperance? Yes, 624 no, 1,138.

Should the Volstead act be modified? Yes, 1,032; no, 593.

Should the eighteenth amendment be repealed? Yes, 825; no, 793.

METHODIST OBJECTS

Bishop Alexander Mann of Pittsburgh diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church declined to comment on Dr. Livingston's report.

Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the Methodist Episcopal Church said: "If such a poll were taken of Methodist ministers they would be found unanimously of the opinion that prohibition is a success.

"Those who think there has been no improvement under the Volstead act have short memories. I travel, on the average, 40,000 miles a year; I enter cities at all hours of the day and night, and I can assure you that I see no such evidence of drunkenness and its attendant evils as were to be encountered before the enactment of the Volstead act. People who say that conditions are just as bad have forgotten—that's all."

"So you would not approve of a change in the law?"

"Oh my, no!" the bishop answered.

of Horta, among whom were Mrs. Mackey, Mr. Skey, the British consul, Fernando Da Costa, Governor of Horta, and several American and English boys who are employed by the Western Union there.

They remained on board until a late hour. It was only after they had gone that we could retire to our state rooms.

Before daylight Tuesday the Lima steamed out of the harbor on its way to Lisbon.

I slept late Tuesday and on reaching the deck was delighted to find among our passengers Mr. Ledger, British consul of Madeira; Mr. Reid of Horta and several other Englishmen.

George and I were given seats at Capt. Paul Carlos Pinto's table. Capt. Pinto is a most genial and jolly person. We always looked forward to being near him at dinner time.

We wondered sometimes if the Portuguese passengers thought we Americans were extremely rude, for they are most formal and dignified at the table while we at the captain's table did much talking and laughing.

At 8:30 when the boat stopped we discovered that we were on the other side of Mount Pico. An hour of sailing from there brought us to Saint Jorge at 11:50 a. m.

TREATED TO FAMOUS CHEESE

We were taken ashore by Capt. Pinto and Second Mate Calas to the home of a friend of the captain. We were escorted to a charming little, old shanty in back of the home.

The floor was covered with straw and wine barrels lined the walls. In the center of the floor a table, covered with an immaculate cloth, was set and we were served the famous St. Jorge cheese and wine. They looked at me in astonishment when I insisted upon a glass of water instead of wine.

Among the guests was an extremely amusing Portuguese, Senor Martins. We called him our Portuguese Charlie Chaplin, for he kept us in a constant uproar of laughter.

After about an hour we returned to the boat and had lunch. The afternoon was spent in writing. We left St. Jorge that night at 11:30.

The next morning we stopped again at 6:30 a. m., and upon peeping out of the porthole I discovered that we were at the little island of Graciosa.

I could not work up enough enthusiasm to get dressed and go ashore. I fell asleep again and didn't awaken until noon.

At 2 o'clock we reached the island of Tercerica, where we remained until 9:30 p. m. We went ashore with Capt. Pinto, Mate Calas, Mr. Ledger, Mr. Reid and several others.

RARE FLOWERS GROW WILD

Tercerica is really a most beautiful island. We enjoyed a trip up the mountain, where we found lovely Madonna lilies and and disa flowers of every color growing wild. The air was invigorating and I felt wonderfully revived and refreshed after being in the stuffy stateroom all morning.

There were photographers and newspapermen galore, and after several pictures were made we returned to the boat, which pulled out at 9:30 p. m.

We reached San Miguel at 6:30 on the morning of the twentieth. We were met by the United States consul, Mr. Day, who escorted us to his home. Later we went for an automobile ride and saw the town of Pontadelgada.

Next afternoon a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Day. We were delighted to be introduced to the noted Marshal Gomes da Costa, head of all Portuguese armies, who is now in exile, following an edict handed down in Lisbon. He is a wonderfully interesting man and has a very sweet little wife.

During the afternoon about 150 guests called. After they had departed we were taken back to the Lima.

We left Pontadelgada at 11:30 p. m. We reached Santa Maria early the next morning and were sailing away before I awakened.

BEAUTIFUL MADEIRA

On the morning of the twenty third, at 7 o'clock, we reached the beautiful Island of Madeira.

I was awakened by the bands which had come out to meet the Lima.

I must say here that I am afraid we Americans do not know enough about Madeira to appreciate its loveliness. One must see it to realize how beautiful it really is.

We went ashore with the vice consul of the United States, Mr. John Hages Lard, and a party and were shown this wonderful island.

We were followed by photographers and every move we made will be reproduced. There was no use in attempting to lose them. They were sent to get pictures, and pictures they intended to get.

We were taken to Reid Hotel, a beautiful place overlooking the ocean, where you may enjoy surf bathing and all the luxuries of the New York hotels for a ridiculously low sum of $5 a day.

I wanted very badly to go for a swim, but with those photographers there, I didn't dare.

We continued our journey up the big mountain. I shall never forget the wonderful scenery. They have a semi-tropical climate the year round, and consequently flowers grow everywhere.

One needs a much bigger vocabulary than I have to adequately describe Madeira. We went as far as the Monte Palace Hotel, the beautiful grounds of which we were shown and upon the cool veranda of which we rested.

We took funny little push cars down the mountain. The ride was extremely thrilling. Two people ride in the cars which are pushed and pulled down the rocky road at terrific speed by two natives.

Part of the time they stood on the rear and pushed with one foot. At other times I had to hold my breath, so fast did we go.

THINKS FLYING SAFER

I could not help thinking how safe flying is compared to this.

We stopped at the door of Mr. and Mrs. Lard's home, where we were entertained at luncheon. We had to rush away immediately afterward as our boat was due to sail at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Lard accompanied us to the boat. After saying goodby and thanking him for a most pleasant day, we hoisted anchor.

As we steamed out of the harbor several small launches, filled with natives of Madeira, escorted us for half a mile. The residents waved their handkerchiefs and cheered.

We returned their salutes from the officer's bridge and watched them until they were out of sight. We then returned to our cabin for a short siesta.

Madeira is the last stop. Tomorrow at 4:30 p. m. we reach Lisbon.

I shall be ever so happy to get there, for we may have a plane awaiting us, if the insurance companies have approved of the idea of a Lisbon to Paris flight.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 27.—"Bill" Stultz, pilot of the Dawn, Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson's amphibian trans-Atlantic plane, will fly the ship in a test flight today, but only because he feels that until he has officially severed his connections with the projected flight to Copenhagen, it is his duty to handle the controls when the occasion arises.

Stultz tendered his resignation from the Grayson expedition yesterday after the publication of alleged remarks by Mrs. Grayson, which in effect said he had assumed command and readed the ship for land when it was off Sable Island in fog last Sunday. After a discussion of his resignation with Mrs. Grayson, Stultz agreed to remain with the party, temporarily, it was said.

Stultz, a pilot of long experience, declared, however, that the agreement to remain with the expedition temporarily did not nullify his resignation which is still in the hands of Mrs. Grayson. He was emphatic in his denial that he had turned the plane West because he was afraid to battle the fog on the Atlantic.

"I am not yellow," said Stultz, "but I have got a few ounces of the common sense necessary for flying."

MOBILIZE ARMS IN CAPITAL

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Oct. 27. — (AP.) — Reports reaching here through various underground channels, since the frontier is tightly closed because of the censorship, said today that the situation in Bucharest is extremely critical.

Public buildings, ministries and railroad stations are heavily guarded by troops and gendarmes, it was stated. All gatherings of more than four persons in the city streets are immediately dispersed, it was said. Troops were reported to have been called in from the provinces and practically surround the capital and occupy strategical points throughout the city.

Bucharest was said to be seething when the report circulated that the Bratiano government intended to arrest Julius Manis, leader of the National Peasant party.

NAILED UP IN BOX, CONVICT ESCAPES

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 27.—(AP.)—T. P. "Red" Harriss, who escaped in a box from the state penitentiary here yesterday, where he was serving a life sentence for robbery and murder, was still at liberty early today.

Harriss had been nailed up in a box which was marked for delivery at the Gray & Dudley hardware foundry in West Nashville. When the box was delivered and opened he dashed from the building after intimidating workmen with a knife. How he managed to enter the box which was supposedly packed under the supervision of guards has not been ascertained.

The escaped convict is believed to have left Nashville aboard a motor bus.

Harriss was one of four men convicted for the murder of Patrolman Polk A. Caraway in a holdup of the Ford motor plant here six years ago. The other three who participated in the holdup also were give life sentences. They escaped from the penitentiary in 1925, but were later recaptured.

FLAMES DAMAGE CANDY FACTORY $15,000

Six families were driven from their homes early this morning as fire raged through the four-story brick structure at 2038-40 Bedford avenue, occupied by Kalb Brothers, manufacturing confectioners. The damage to the candy plant was estimated at $15,000. Three alarms were sounded.

Four of the families driven out were Negroes and occupied a frame house at 2044 Bedford avenue. The other families lived in a frame house in the rear of the candy factory.

The fire, of undetermined origin, was discovered in the rear of the first floor in the candy factory by a pedestrian. It quickly spread to the other floors and for a time threatened to envelop adjoining buildings.

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 27.—(INS.)—Frank Hilton, 55, a mill worker, shot his wife, Cora, 50, to death at Parkesburg, near here, early today and then turned his revolver on himself, ending his own life.

The couple was spending the night at the home of Mrs. Hilton's father, Taylor Irely, where yesterday they attended the funeral of Mrs. Hilton's mother. No cause could be learned for the double tragedy.

4 STILLS SEIZED IN POLICE RAID

Lieut. Clarence Timmons and a squad of Woods Run police, captured one man, confiscated four stills, 65 gallons of moonshine, 108 barrels of mash and 2,700 pounds of corn sugar in three raids last night.

In North Side Police Court Magistrate E. M. Hough held John Leschak, 28, of 3127 Lecky avenue, for court after Lieut. Timmons told of finding Leschak in the house with a 100-gallon still, 20 gallons of moonshine and 32 barrels of mash. At 1307 Menlo street the officers found a 250-gallon still, 10 gallons of moonshine, but nobody in charge. Birdhouse Club Show Closed to Adults

The first big event on the Sun-Tele Birdhouse contest program—the show at the new Penn Theater Saturday morning—will be for the boys and girls of the Birdhouse Club only, it was announced yesterday by J. W. Aylward, manager of the club.

There will be no tickets sold, adults will not be allowed in the theater, for admission to Buster Keaton's comedy —"College" will be by presentation of membership card only.

Buster Keaton, who will apepar here next week in person, tried to make arrangements to get here for the special show Saturday morning, but was not able to do so. He will not arrive in the city until Monday.

The motion picture, which tells the story of a young boy who had to win fame in athletics or lose his sweetheart, is a tale of exciting comedy, youthful sadness and drama. "College" will be shown to the boys and girls of the Sun-Tele Club as a pre-release, for it will not be shown on the screen at regular performances until next week.

And remember—have your membership cards ready at the theater entrance at a quarter to nine Saturday morning.

HAWAIIAN FLIER -:- DROPS THROUGH MIST -:- TO RODGERS FIELD

AIRMEN GREET HIM

PILOT AND HIS PLANE

The inset is a "closeup" of Col. Arthur Goebel while above is shown the Travel-Air monoplane Woolaroc in which he flew from San Francisco to Hawaii, winning first prize of $25,000, and incidentally demonstrating that American radio engineers have developed a successful instrument by which a radio beam will guide airplanes to their destination regardless of weather conditions. Col. Goebel says what America (and Pittsburgh) needs most now is adequate landing fields "in every town, no matter how small."

MAGRUDER LOSES HIS APPEAL TO WILBUR TO KEEP JOB

No Action Now, Wilbur Says, Sees Coolidge

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Rear Admiral Magruder appeared today to have lost his appeal to continue as head of the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

His letter, asking President Coolidge to retain him in the post after Secretary of Navy Wilbur had ordered him detached from it, was delivered to the Chief Executive this forenoon by Wilbur in person.

Wilbur, emerging from his visit to the President, announced nothing would be done about the letter "for the present."

He added he did not expect to see Magruder before November 5, when the admiral, who attacked Navy management in a magazine article, is ordered to leave Philadelphia to report here.

Inasmuch as President Coolidge could hardly be expected to pass on Magruder's case before Wilbur discussed the matte finally with the officer, observers pointed out Magruder's detachment will become effective before he sees Mr. Coolidge. Wilbur gave no indication he would postpone the effective date.

FORMER FOES AID ORGANIZATION CANDIDATES

Two men who have been active opponents of the organization urged the election of the entire Republican ticket in addresses today at the noon meeting in the Hotel Henry headquarters. One was former Congressman William H. Coleman, who frequently was mentioned as a possible running mate of C. C. McClovern. The other was Maj. Robert M. Ewing, who was a candidate for County Court judge against the organization two years ago.

"In the wisdom of our legislature a primary election law has been placed on the statute books whereby the voters may freely express their wishes in making up a party ticket," said Maj. Ewing. "Party regularity demands the support of the ticket so selected by all those who enter the primaries and participate therein.

"Two years ago my name went before the people as a candidate for a highly important office. When defeat came to me in the primaries, I was one of the first to congratulate my successful opponent and in the campaign that followed I gave him my entire and hearty support for election. This was nothing but what my obligation to the party dictated, and I only refer to it as being in line with what every Republican is expected to do. We have on this ticket men of the highest qualifications and personal integrity and I bespeak for them your support."

ROCKY GROVE HUNTS MAN WHO TIED CHILD

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 27.—Rocky Grove residents are seeking the identity of a man who seized Melvin Mong, Jr., 3, and left him tied in a coal shed several hours. ADVERTISING IS NEWS SWIFT TELLS PACKERS

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Advertising is distinctly news, declared G. F. Swift, member of the Institute of American Meat Packers, in an address before the body. "This fact was proved to the packing industry during its recent advertising and merchandising campaign on ham and bacon," Mr. Swift said. "This campaign was the first on which the meat industry advertised co-operatively in newspapers or any other medium on a nation wide scale."

CAN SAVE CITY $1,000,000, HE SAYS

George B. Kountz, president of the Allied Boards of Trade, claims that he can save the city $1,000,000 if Council will provide expenses.

When he offered his services to Council, he insisted upon maintaining secrecy in regard to his plan for saving the money. Nor would he discuss his plans at the meeting of the Allied Boards of Trade last night, although he and others present advocated the city manager form of government for Pittsburgh.

"If the gentleman will put that in writing, certainly we'll give him expenses," said Councilman John S. Herron when Mr. Kountz made his offer to that body.

Mr. Kountz, at last night's meeting, charged "favoritism" in public improvements.

"It is an insult to good citizenship when any group of responsible business men of a community, appealing for a public improvement, are immediately asked by Council and the Mayor whether they have seen the ward chairman and obtained his indorsement of the project, but that is what is happening now in Pittsburgh," he said.

TWO "SHEIK BANDITS" CONFESS

"GAT MADE 'EM SHAKE," SAYS ACCUSED

William Ranger, 22, and Herbert Neland, 18, alleged sheik bandits, confessed in Morals Court today to holding up the Shady Pharmacy, Shady avenue near Penn, and the Cullen drug store, Center avenue and Neville street.

"It was easy pickin's," Ranger explained.

"And we liked to see how those black babies shook at the knees when we stuck a 'gat' in front of 'em," Neland informed Magistrate E. M. Hough.

The youths, both from Akron, O., were arrested in the Hill district for creating a disturbance and later in stand-ups were identified as the drug-store bandits. The two holdups netted them about $100. They were held for court on several charges by Magistrate Hough.

Good News for Expectant Mothers

Doctor's Discovery Relieves Much Unnecessary Suffering

IT has been proven conclusively that much of the suffering experienced during expectancy, as well as at childbirth, is entirely unnecessary.

Dr. Holmes' discovery, "Mother's Friend," aids the muscles and tissues to expand more easily, month after month, right up to the climax of child-birth!

Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., writes: "With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used "Mother's Friend" and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes."

Start using Mother's Friend tonight—the sooner the better and write for free booklet on "Things to Know Before Baby Comes" (sent in plain envelope). Mother's Friend is sold by all drug stores. Bradfield Regulator Co., Desk 21, Atlanta, Ga.

CLAIMS BIGAMY, FINDS SELF DIVORCED

Blond and brunet offered a striking contrast yesterday in Criminal Court when Joseph Lewis Donner, aged 26, of 130 Franklin street, Woodlawn, was arraigned on a charge of bigamy. Julia DeJohn, about 23, a strikingly beautiful blonde, of 512 Island avenue, McKees Rocks, who was the first wife, alleged the defendant had married Goldie V. Capian, also about 23 and an equally beautiful brunet, without formality of a divorce.

Attorney Ben Lencher for the defendant offered a record of a divorce granted Donner December 29, 1926, by Judge Frank Reader in Beaver county, on the grounds of desertion. Attorney Leslie F. Baum, Beaver county master in divorce in the action, testified he had served the first wife with notice of the divorce action, which she denied receiving. The second marriage took place June 19. Visiting Judge Miles I. Potter directed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty.

WOMEN VOTERS TOLD OF FRAUD

The rain of ballots did not fall alike on the just and the unjust in the primary, Ralph H. Frank, speaking in behalf of C. C. McGovern and George B. Shields, told the members of the Wilkinsburg League of Women Voters yesterday. He declared the opening of ballot boxes has shown that in virtually every instance organization candidates had been credited with more votes than they really received and independent aspirants with less.

DENY POLLING PLACE LAW VIOLATED

Denying that the law governing the erection of guard rails in front of booths in polling places in the county was being violated, the County Commissioners, in a letter to the Allegheny County Elections Association, yesterday asserted that every polling place in the county was supplied with guard rails. The association had charged that a number of polling places in the county were not supplied with the rails.

The Commissioners declared that every polling place in the county, prior to the primary election, had been supplied with guard rails.

"The custodians of the polling places were instructed how to erect the rails and ordered to erect them before the primary election," Commissioner E. V. Babcock said.

The registration commission will hold hearings late today on petitions contesting the regularity of 168 registrations in the First Ward which, it is alleged, are fictitious persons and addresses. Hearings were delayed yesterday because several witnesses did not appear.

DR. RINEHART MAKES PLEA

HARRISBURG, Oct. 27.—Dr. Stanley M. Rinehart, the husband of Mary Roberts Rinehart, novelist and short story writer, made a personal plea to the Board of Pardons this afternoon for pardon of Angelo Jackson, who has been in jail 22 years for murder. Jackson for several years the gardner of the Rinehart home in the Pittsburgh suburbs, was sentenced to the gallows for the shooting of Gertrude Nicholls, in 1905. His sentence was changed to life imprisonment in 1907 and he has been in the Western Penitentiary since. Dr. Rinehart testified of the sober, industrious character of Jackson and how he had impressed himself and his author wife as being the kind of a worker who would not naturally commit crime. Musmanno contended Jackson had fired at the woman to frighten her and did not know he had hit the woman until arrested for her murder.

$50,000 ASKED FOR ARREST

William E. Yost, Jr., of Rook Station, a former railroad conductor, has entered suit for $50,000 damages against the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad Company for false arrest. Yost alleges that on August 25, 1925, he was taken to the office of the company by Walter Monaghan, a representative of the company, illegally detained there, and beaten by Monaghan. Before Alderman Howard James an information was made against him charging the receiving of stolen goods and later an additional information of entering a railroad car was made. Yost alleges that although his case in Criminal Court was listed for trial five times, he was not brought to trial until May 17, 1927, when he was acquitted.

KANE BEARS STALL FRIGHTENED HORSES

KANE, Pa., Oct. 27.—Huge black bears that come out of the woods to amble along roadways may not mean any harm, but it took Charles Anderson, farmer on the Jojo road near here, half an hour to convince his two horses of the fact. They refused to budge until Bruin had gone back to the woods.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

It would be far easier to tell you what is not in this sale, rather than to enumerate the countless models, fabrics, patterns and colors you will find. We do not know of scarcely a single desirable overcoating fabric that is missing—nor a single good pattern or shade. We have intentionally refrained from quoting the true values of these Overcoats, for we do not want to even appear to exaggerate. When you look at the fine wool fabrics and note the details of workmanship, we are satisfied that you will place a higher estimate than what we could conservatively state.

More Than 800 Overcoats to Choose from When Sale Begins

There isn't a man in Pittsburgh who won't find his ideal in an overcoat here. Men who are accustomed to paying higher prices for finer overcoats need not hesitate because these are marked $33.00. CHICKENS KEPT IN HOUSE, WIFE GETS DIVORCE

It may be a grand and glorious feeling to help a baby chick arrive from the peep stage to a full grown rooster or hen—provided the brooder is kept in a proper space in the barn. But when one's husband uses the bedroom for a chicken farm it becomes cruel and barbarous treatment and the wife is entitled to a divorce. So ruled Judge George V. Moore in granting a decree to Mrs. Freda Neus from her husband, John Neus.

Mrs. Neus testified that shortly after marriage her husband brought home 500 chicks and a brooder and installed them in their bedroom. The room temperature was kept at 90 degrees from January until March, when the chicks were ready to scratch for themselves. And then, said the wife, her husband used the Neus kitchenware and crockery to bathe the little peeps. All this happened on a farm between Crafton and Carnegie.

The wife further stated that when she worked in town all day and came home to prepare her husband's evening meal he gave the food to the family dog. Incidentally, the wife further declared, her husband came home drunk frequently and boasted of his affairs with other women.

The couple were married in January, 1921, and separated April 11, 1927. Mrs. Neus has a business in the Allegheny Market House and her husband, an automobile mechanic, lives at 512 Arch street. The case was not contested.

RED CROSS FETE PLANNED

About 3,000 persons will attend. After the program in the auditorium, exhibits will be shown of the Red Cross activities in the Pittsburgh Chapter.

DISCUSS FLOODS TOMORROW

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang and others who recently inspected the waterfronts of Memphis and other Ohio and Mississippi River cities will report their observations and recommendations at a meeting of the Flood Wall and River Improvement Association at 10 o'clock Friday morning in the Council chamber. Council has set aside $50,000 for a survey of the situation preliminary to a general improvement of the Pittsburgh waterfront.

PERSONAL SERVICE IN DIVORCE CASES ORDERED

Judge Ambrose B. Reid is requiring all lawyers handling divorce cases to prove beyond question that personal service has been obtained on respondents in non-contested cases where it is set up that a subpena in a divorce libel actually had been served. In several cases yesterday the court required affidavits to the effect that the papers served had been read to the respondents in the cases and that persons in the house where the service was obtained knew that the respondents in question were those named in the divorce proceedings.

PASTOR, UNDER FIRE, TO FIGHT CHARGES

WON'T GIVE UP TOWER HILL PULPIT

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 27.—"Fired! Who has the power to fire me out of my church at Tower Hill?"

The Rev. Andrew B. Lemke, 28, thus responded to a query by a Sun-Telegraph representative as to whether he had been dismissed by the "new church board," said to have been organized after many persons left his church, a coke region mission of the Disciples of Christ, near Uniontown.

"What power has Rev. Joel Lee Jones and Rev. Ray Manley to interfere with my church services and attempt to oust me?" demanded the young pastor, whose resignation was demanded by the "Coke Region" committee of the Western Pennsylvania Christian Missionary Society and the United Christian Missionary Society for his alleged tendencies toward "open membership" or reception of unimmersed persons, into the church.

"I am not under the jurisdiction of the Christian Board of Missions or the Fayette county ministers and will ignore completely any action they have taken or may take as to my pastorate. These ministers have no more right to come into my church and interfere than I have in theirs.

"They say they have dismissed me. That's funny. How can they do such a thing when my congregation, almost as a whole, is standing behind me while I am fighting the first real battle of my ministerial career. I don't intend to make a flivver of my first assignment and will fight to the finish for what I think is right.

"What's the difference whether you get a person into the church by sprinkling or immersion, just so you get them into the faith? Am I a heretic because I use sprinkling instead of immersion? Is thus get people to come to Christ? I believe in the 'open church membership' and will continue to practice it."

Asked as to whether he would endeavor to hold services next Sunday against the request of the missionary society and possible legal developments, the Rev. Lemke shot back, "You can just bet I will, and I have invited no other ministers to be present. I still am the pastor of the church regardless of action by the so-called 'new board' organized with 25 adults and 23 children present after 230 others had left the church when I departed."

POTTERS EXPECTED TO MEET IN CAPITAL

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Oct. 27.—Washington, D. C., probably will be selected for the convention of the United States Potters' Association when the executive committee meets here tomorrow. The convention will be held early in December, according to Thomas Anderson, of Coshocton, O., president. Charles F. Goodwin, East Liverpool, is secretary and treasurer of the association.

ACTION ON MALONEY PETITION IS POSTPONED

No action was taken last night on the petition of Alderman A. M. Maloney for the striking of more than 100 names from the registration lists of the First Ward on his charges of false registration. The Registration Board heard 60 witnesses presented by the Alderman, running for reelection, but postponed action until tonight when others will testify.

BOY LOSES LIFE PLAYING 'HOOK'

ROCHESTER, Pa., Oct. 27.—Playing hook from school cost Bobby Ingram, 10, orphan, his life. When the fire gong sounded in the school yesterday—just a drill—Bobby marched out with his school mates. He and several others did not return, spending the afternoon hopping freight trains. Bobby, in alighting, was thrown under the wheels of a box car. Both legs were severed. He died in Rochester hospital. The boy resided with his grandmother, Mrs. C. A. Ingram, of Bridge street.

OPPOSE SCHOOL LAND PURCHASE

Anna Irwin Winner, Samuel Hall and William Tunstall have filed exceptions to the decree of Judge Frank I. Gollmar, wherein the court granted the School Board of Homestead school district permission to purchase the Seibel property in Mifflin township for $28,500 for a playground and athletic field. When the school board entered into negotiations for the purchase of the land the three plaintiffs filed a bill in equity to restrain the board, declaring the site was inaccessable, and the price excessive. Judge Gollmar dismissed the equity proceedings and placed the costs on the plaintiffs. The exceptions will be argued within the next four weeks.

INDEPENDENTS IN STATE OF COLLAPSE—HOULAHEN

The Independent party campaign is "in a state of collapse," said Commissioner James Houlahan, Democrat, speaking last night at a meeting in the Allen School, Eighteenth Ward.

"The people now realize that the McGovern movement does not represent any genuine Independent party but is only a subterfuge aimed at the minority place on the board of commissioners. It is merely a fraction of the Republican party that, having lost its own party primaries, is now attempting to masquerade as a new political party—a party which will entirely disappear after the November election."

BOOTH TARKINGTON REPORTED NEAR BLINDNESS

Noted Author Admits Eyesight Impaired

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—The eyesight of Booth Tarkington, novelist and dramatist, today was the subject of considerable attention in newspapers.

While some accounts said the author, threatened with blindness, was working with added effort to finish several books, relatives and his physician disputed such versions.

TELLS OF TROUBLE

Quoting Tarkington, who is at his summer home at Kennebunkport, Me., a New York paper says the bursting of a blood vessel about a year ago had cost the novelist the sight of his right eye, and near-sightedness threatened his left. Strenuous treatment saved it, however, though he was under doctor's orders for a time not to use his eyesight, he said.

While some newspapers said the novelist was still receiving medical attention at Kennebunkport from Dr. John Ray Newcomb, eye specialist of Indianapolis, Mrs. Ovid Butler Jameson, of Indianapolis, Tarkington's sister, said his eyesight was not threatened, but rather was better than ever.

PUBLISHER GETS PROOFS

Nelson Doubleday, vice president of Doubleday, Page Co., Tarkington's publishers, said at his home in Oyster Bay.

"I knew Tarkington had a little trouble with one eye. He caught cold in it and has been undergoing treatment for that.

"It may be he is going blind, but I sincerely hope the report is untrue. I know he has been working very hard and correcting proofs, which does not seem as if his eyesight was impaired."

CALLS CHARLEROI HEALTHIEST TOWN

Health being a commodity that can be bought, Pittsburgh needs a "considerable" enlargement of its appropriation toward it, Dr. Lee K. Frankel, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and former president of the American Public Health Association, declared to 400 members of the field force of the Metropolitan at a banquet in the William Penn Hotel.

While the national death rate in cities averages 11.8 to every 1,000 population, that in Pittsburgh is 14.6, Dr. Frankel said. Charleroi ranks lowest in Western Pennsylvania towns, he declared, with a rate of 7.1; Butler second with 7.4 and Washington third with 8.3. New Castle is highest with a rate of 19.3; Erie next with 18.6 and Beaver Falls third with 16.9.

MELLON RULES G. O. P., CHARGES LABOR PARTY

Declaring that the Republican party is dominated by the Mellon machine and represents the interests of large corporations, that the Democratic party is "but another representative of the capitalist interests," support of the Labor party at the November election was urged in a statement issued today by Max Jenkins, secretary.

At the same time Mr. Jenkins made public the platform of the party, which declares in favor of the construction of dwellings by municipalities to be rented to workers without profit, the appointment of a commission of representatives of the trade unions to study the unemployment situation, the repeal of the poll tax, municipal and state ownership of public utilities, old age pensions, equal rights and equal pay for women, the organization of all public employes and election reform.

"The Labor party condemns the policy of importing cheap labor into this district by the large industrial interests with no concern for the serious social and economic results for the city and county," reads the platform. "The Labor party denies that the courts have a right to issue injunctions against labor in times of strikes or lockouts. Injunctions against labor violate the constitutional rights of free speech, free press and free assemblage."

P. R. R. EMPLOYES PROMOTED

The board of directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad, meeting late yesterday, announced several promotions in the traffic department, which will be effective November 1. Those affecting the local and nearby divisions follow:

W. C. Sommers, new district freight agent at Cleveland, will become division freight agent at Wheeling, succeeding Mr. Bonsallier.

W. T. Veit, at present division freight agent at Altoona, will become division freight agent at Baltimore.

BRIDE KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. Dorothy Edna McNeel, 19, of Altoona, a bride of 12 hours, was killed and her husband, W. Reuben McNeel, 22, was critically injured when their automobile overturned on Wallace Hill near here last night. The couple had been married in Juniata, near here, yesterday and were on their honeymoon when the accident occurred.

SUIT AGAINST BANKER FOR $150,000 DROPPED

SIOUX City, Ia., Oct. 27.—John J. Large's suit for $150,000 against John McHugh, president of the Chase National Bank of New York City, was dismissed by Federal Judge James D. Elliott on the motion of attorneys for Large. They informed the court, after Large had testified, that the evidence showed he had no case against McHugh.

Large is a Sioux City real estate dealer. He sought damages on an alleged oral contract with McHugh, former Sioux City resident.

Pyorrhea Misery Ends

Pyorrhea works unseen—and usually without your knowing it. Just an occasional bleeding of the gums is the only way you can tell it the first month or two. But all the time it is working up into the tooth sockets. It loosens the teeth—and you will lose them, one by one, if you don't stop pyorrhea now.

Don't delay treating pyorrhea. The longer you let it go, the harder it is to stop it. End pyorrhea now—with GERM-ORAL. This scientific antiseptic is so powerful that it destroys pyorrhea germs—at a touch. Just a simple brushing of the teeth with a brush dipped in GERM-ORAL sends this scientific antiseptic under the gum margin and between the teeth, clearing out all pus and infection.

From the very first day relief begins. Your gums harden nicely. Soreness disappears. Bleeding quickly stops. Many have told us that GERM-ORAL is the one thing that completely ends pyorrhea and sore, spongy, bleeding gums.

Get GERM-ORAL today at the druggist. It is all antiseptic—no water. Remember, only with GERM-ORAL are you sure of ending dreaded pyorrhea, and bringing health to your mouth, teeth and gums. It always works. You get absolute benefit from one bottle or money refunded. If inconvenient to buy at the drug store, send 75 cents to Hollander Bros. Drug Co., Dept. 14 D, Rankin, Pa.

"Dear, I want you to know now that S.S.S. has been used for over 100 years—it is made from fresh roots and herbs—growing children sometimes need a tonic, as do their elders—it is helping you, and I want you to take it regularly before each meal."

Try S.S.S. and you will be surprised how quickly your appetite improves. If you are tired, run-down and listless you owe it to yourself and family to give S.S.S. a trial. It helps Nature build up red blood corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the body is nourished. S.S.S. is time-tried and reliable, and is unequalled for restoring strength and vitality.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

SIX-HOUR FIGHT WITH PULMOTOR SAVES BABY

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—A six-hour pulmotor battle to save the life of a four-day-old baby girl was pronounce to be successful as the infant daughter of John Fitzgibbon began to breathe again, not quite normally, but in a way to encourage the physician.

The pulmotor was operated in relays, and at the conclusion of the six hours the members of Pulmotor Squad No. 2, of the fire department, was kept on hand for any possible emergency at the request of the physician, Dr. D. D. Goldberg.

Artificial respiration was started when the men arrived at the urgent call of the doctor, just as the baby had breathed its last. Before any natural breaths were taken at all the baby had been under artificial respiration for three hours. After that, however, the pulmotor had to be resorted to at intervals only.

MOVE TO BLOCK VOTE FRAUDS

Grant Curry, president, Allegheny County Election Association, and Francis S. Guthrie, secretary, went into conference with District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner today regarding vote frauds in the recent primary and to discuss plans to prevent a recurrence in the coming general election.

Additional prosecutions of election board managers in the primary will be among the things to emanate from the conference following the recount in more than 30 boxes by the special election returns committee, of which Ward Bonsall is chairman.

The election association has established temporary headquarters at 1409 First National Bank Building pending the opening of its permanent offices in the House Building, to be ready November 1. Contributions to its work and offers of service in the coming election are asked immediately. Telephone service in the temporary headquarters was made available today.

Life actually prolonged!

By keeping the system cleansed of poisons

MEN of science are constantly working on a problem vital to the human race—longevity! They find that one of the surest ways to increase your span of life is to keep the intestines cleansed of poisons due to wrong habits of living and eating and to delayed elimination. They find everybody in danger of this condition—everybody suffering from it at times.

Many of our foremost scientists recommend the use of Nujol as a harmless corrective and preventive. For Nujol does both things for you because it has the peculiar quality of not being absorbed by the system at all. But Nujol does absorb body poisons. Carries them away right out of the system. Corrects internal difficulties. If taken faithfully Nujol makes impossible delayed elimination and the absorption of poisons into the blood. Thus it acts as a preventive. Your whole system will benefit if you learn to use Nujol whenever you feel the need of it. Nujol is so safe that babies, old people, and sick people can take it too. Ask your doctor about it. He'll tell you it can't hurt you. It's not habit-forming, contains no drugs or medicine. Perfected by the Chemical Products Division of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. It is different from anything else. Absolutely pure and safe to take under any conditions.

You can get Nujol at any druggist. The genuine product comes in the famous Nujol bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle. Don't delay—get a bottle at once.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

California to Send One of Her Young Daughters Here to Make Debut in Mother's Home Town

CALIFORNIA is sending one of her young daughters to Pittsburgh this winter so that she may make her debut in her mother's home town and be presented to all of her mother's old friends. This newest addition to the list of debutantes is Jane Foster and she is a daughter of Mrs. Charles Addison Foster, the former Gertrude Childs. The Fosters have made their home in the West for a number of years, and Jane receivd her education there. She will spend the winter with her grandmother, Mrs. Harvey Childs, Jr., of Kipling road.

Jane and her cousin, Mary Childs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Childs, of Albemarle avenue, will be presented together at a ball which will be given the night after Christmas in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. Mary is a Farmington School girl, having been graduated last June. In this case, as in several other debuts this season, the customary tea has been omitted from the program, and the ball will be the only formal coming-out party for these two girls. The hosts will be the debutantes' uncles and aunts, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Childs III, of Roslyn place, and Mr. and Mrs. Blair Childs, of Beeler street.

Another debutante will be entertained December 20, when Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, of Morewood avenue, is planning to give a tea dance for her granddaughter, Eunice Parish DuPuy. Eunice is coming out this season and expects to visit her grandmother during the Christmas holidays. She is the elder daughter of Mrs. William A. Atkins, of Indianapolis, and the late Col. Charles Meredith DuPuy, and since her mother's marriage to Mr. Atkins has lived with her in Indianapolis.

That group of charitably inclined women comprising the board of managers of the Eye and Ear Hospital, headed by Mrs. William M. McKelvy, has been bending every effort lately to make the annual benefit bridge party next Tuesday in the Hotel Schenley one of the most successful it has ever held. The benefit was not held last year—the first time it has been omitted from the social calendar since the board was formed—so the members are redoubling their work this season. Mrs. Edward B. Scull, Mrs. Howard Hale McClintic and Mrs. John McC. Wilson are in general charge, with Mrs. William Scott as treasurer. Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, a charter member of the board, and Miss Alice Gray will see to the decorations while the cards and scores will be taken care of by Mrs. Edwin N. Ohl and Mrs. Charles W. Dahlinger. Another charter member, Mrs. Albert E. Dilworth, with Miss Elizabeth Childs and Mrs. Robert J. McKay will be in charge of the tables and the printing is being done under the direction of Mrs. Thomas R. Robinson. Miss Anne H. Robinson will be at the door and the ushers will include Mrs. John F. Walton and Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby.

The board feels, and quite rightly, too, that this is a particularly worthy cause, since the hospital works so large among the blind and has been able to restore sight to many who have lived most or all of their lives in total darkness. This, by the way, is the only hospital in the city with a ward devoted entirely to children who are threatened with blindness resulting from lack of care at birth.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thompson have returned home from Philadelphia, where they attended the debut of Mrs. Thompson's niece, Miss Nancy Pemberton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Pemberton, Jr.

Miss Hazel Lenberg was maid of honor, and Gardner Knight of Somerville, Mass., was best man. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Flemming will be at home in McPherson boulevard. "LIVE, LET LIVE," SLOGAN URGED

Better management of business generally is largely responsible for the present prosperity in the face of a price decline in many commodities, Edgar J. Kaufmann told Chamber of Commerce members yesterday in a "Management Week" address to the 16 business councils of the Chamber of Commerce. His topic was "Management's Part in Maintaining Prosperity."

Mr. Kaufmann declared that successful management must respect the slogan, "Live and let live" with respect to wages.

CHICAGO BANKER DENIES HOSTILITY TO FARM RELIEF

INTERESTS ARE ALLIED HE DECLARES

[The following article by Melvin Traylor of Chicago, retiring president of the American Bankers' Association, was written after the bankers had granted members of a farm relief committee, headed by United States Senator Caraway of Arkansas, 20 minutes before an association committee in which to present the farmers' problems. Monday, Senator Caraway charged the American Bankers' Association with being hostile to the farmers after he and members of his committee were refused a place on the convention program.]

By MELVIN A. TRAYLOR.

Retiring President, American Bankers' Association. Written exclusively for Universal Service.

(Copyright, 1927, Universal Service.)

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 27.—I am a farmer and the son of a farmer. As such I am in close sympathy with the farmers' problems.

The farmers' problems are the bankers' troubles. There is an association of interests that I cannot too strongly emphasize.

Along with all members of the American Bankers' Association, I have a profound interest in the development of sound economic policies for farming, one of the basic industries.

Concerning the misunderstanding over Senator Caraway's committee, I understand that they wrote a letter to me asking for a place on the convention program.

I never heard of the letter, nor have I seen it. I know the gentlemen personally and they know where I am. The program was closed at least six months ago.

They spent the time they finally were given, I am advised, in vituperative attacks on the American Bankers' Association.

I wonder if the farmers of the country, who have been supplied with hundreds of millions of dollars of financial co-operation by the bankers, are willing to place their welfare in the hands of gentlemen whose particular business consists in being elected to office, or to the bankers who have carried them through thick and thin, year in and year out, and who are willing to continue to do so in the future.

Your Smile and Your Teeth

Anita Stewart

Restoring "Off-Color" Teeth to Gleaming Whiteness

DENTAL science has discovered that one's teeth seldom are naturally "off color." Hence you can now restore them to dazzling clearness quickly. Can firm tender gums to healthy coral color.

Run your tongue across your teeth. You will feel a slippery sort of film, coating them, that absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. A film ordinary dentifrices won't clear off successfully. That's why, no matter how hard you've brushed, your teeth stayed dingy looking.

Film also, by breeding germs, invites tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea. Beneath it are those gleaming teeth you envy. Results are amazing when it's removed.

Thus leading dental authorities now widely urge a new-type, film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent, different from all others. One's whole appearance thus is often changed.

Put old ways aside. Get Pepsodent at any drug store. Note the difference that comes. Ten-day test tube will be sent for coupon.

RING OF EXPERIENCE

DIVORCE EMBLEM

Evelyn Scott, of Boston, and the divorce ring shown upon her finger have no relation other than that Evelyn has a good-looking figger, pardon, it should have read finger. This "unwedding" ring is being worn by the smart—interpret that word as you wish—divorcee. It is circled with crepe, which really seems to a bachelor as slightly inappropriate.

Woman, Trying to Save Dog, Killed by Auto

A pet dog unwittingly led his mistress to her death last night when Miss Ellen Tanzy, 28, niece of William Cassells, former assistant manager of the Davis Theater, was killed by an automobile at North avenue and Palo Alto street, North Side. William J. Schieck, 36, of 1317 Reedsdale street, the driver, was turned over to the coroner.

Mr. and Mrs. Cassells and their son are visiting relatives in Europe and Miss Tanzy was left in charge of the house until their return. A canary and a pet dog left in her care took up a great deal of her time and she had given up a position as usher in the Davis Theater so she could give the proper attention to the home.

About dinner last night, she took the dog for a walk and at North avenue and Palo Alto street, the dog darted into the street. Fearing for its safety, but disregarding her own, Miss Tanzy started in pursuit and as she ran from behind a truck, the Schieck machine bore down on her. The driver was unable to stop and the machine hit her and dragged her beneath the wheels.

Schieck took Miss Tanzy to the Presbyterian Hospital where she died about an hour later.

The Crosley Bandbox—Radio's amazing success not because the price is low, but because the set is magic

Only $55.

The ability of the new Bandbox is amazing. Its simple operation is easily understood and its wonderful performance is at the command of any hand that can turn the dial.

Millions are making up their minds today to buy a radio.

Millions will replace obsolete sets with new, up-to-date receivers this fall.

Experienced radio owners will look first for 3 fundamental points and to every radio set they consider will address these questions:

1. Is it selective?
2. Is it sensitive?
3. Is it easy to operate?

Satisfied on these points they will look for:

1. Single dial control.
2. Illuminated dial.
3. Volume control.
4. Single cable leads.
5. Console installation adaptability.
6. Reasonable in price.

Millions will look at the Crosley Bandbox. This amazing little set is now displayed by more than 16,000 dealers.

One dealer, alone, expects to sell a million dollars' worth of Bandboxes this season.

Crosley dealers from Maine to California have this wonderful receiver hooked up for immediate demonstration and will explain its matchless performance in a manner somewhat like this:

The Crosley Bandbox is a 6-tube receiver.

The circuit of this set is of the excellence you would expect from a group of skilled engineers suddenly given the pick of the world's radio patents to work with.

The "Bandbox" was designed after the new patent situation developed so favorably for Crosley.

Crosley has always given the radio world its biggest value for its dollar. Contemplate the perfection possible when the doors of the research and development laboratories of The Radio Corporation of America, The General Electric Co., The Westinghouse Co., The American Telephone and Telegraph Co., and the Hazeltine and Latour Corporations were thrown open.

Licensed under their patents!

Tremendous! Wonderful! Significant!

Simply, it means that millions will possess the best radio performance possible at the low prices for which Crosley is already famous.

The Crosley Bandbox, solid, sturdy, substantial, is assembled on a heavy metal chassis.

Much has influenced the $55 price of the Bandbox.

First, an ideal and an idea.

Then, a working out of the idea.

And now, the constant possession of the ideal.

Back before radio became the entertainment force it is today Powel Crosley Jr., held an ideal that the things which give people pleasure should be made to sell at low prices so that millions might enjoy them.

When radio was a bundle of hair pins turned with the knobs from typewriter carriages, he had the idea that if he could make radios in sufficient quantities, he could supply millions with a means of enjoying this new source of pleasure at moderate prices.

Every radio year has been a year of mass production experience to Crosley. This year saw an investment of over half a million dollars in equipment that a fine radio might be made at such speed and in such quantities that a price of nearly half a hundred dollars could be maintained.

Throughout the country millions examine the Bandbox today. They see it the achievement of an organization who began its development when radio as we know it today began. Its success has been tremendous if clamorous demands from dealers are any indication. Skeptics, the unbiased and the radio wise, have pronounced it GREAT. Even at any price it would be a sensation, for its performance ranks with the most expensive and fanciest radio receivers on the market.

THE CROSLEY MUSICONES ARE AS OUTSTANDING IN THEIR FIELD AS THE BANDBOX IS IN ITS

12-Inch Ultra Musicone, $9.75

Back in early 1925 radio's audibility above the single telephone ear unit depended upon a horn. Unnatural and harsh, it laid a handicap on a fast developing industry. Only at great cost could its limitations be surmounted. Suddenly Crosley offered the radio world a cone speaker at $17.50. Instantly the demand exceeded the supply. Promptly loud speaker sales were gauged by the leadership of the Musicone.

16-Inch Super Musicone, $12.75

Today that position is still maintained. The cause is plain. Mechanical refinement and improvements of the Musicone since its inception have been constant and considerable.

Tilt-Table Musicone, $17.50

Price of the Musicone has shown a steady downward trend from $17.50 in 1925 down to $9.75 at the present time.

Only a national acceptance could make this possible and only a remarkable value could create such a national acceptance.

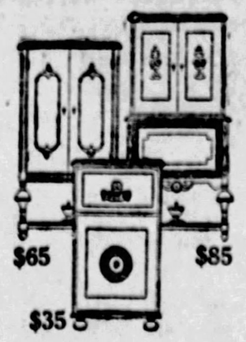
Today the Musicone is a perfect reproducer thru—

1—A new metallurgical discovery giving many times the vibrating capacity of the actuating unit as formerly.
2—Bakelite coil cores impervious to moisture.
3—Specially coated wire that does not permit deterioration in damp climates.

Crosley owners find a perfet affinity between the Bandbox and the Musicone aside from their physical appearance.

The Musicone is sold in two sizes:
The Ultra Musicone (12-inch).....$ 9.75
The Super Musicone (16-inch).....$12.75

CROSLEY APPROVED CONSOLES



"I want the public to have as great a value in consoles this year as I have given them in the Bandbox," said Powel Crosley, Jr.

Prominent furniture manufacturers thru their long experience promised beautiful cabinets at moderate prices. Designs submitted were admired, praised, tested, approved! The Musicones were built in. Crosley dealers now sell them. Purchasers may know they are best suited for Crosley radio by looking for the "approved label" in each one. Crosley dealers get these cabinets only from The H. T. Roberts Co., located at 1249 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago. Sales representatives for The Showers Brothers Co., Bloomington, Ind., and The Wolf Manufacturing Industries, Kokomo, Ind.

Whereas A Girl Risks Her All To Get A Rich Society Husband

IT NEVER PAYS

Margie Gets an Invitation To a Yacht Party Tubby Wells Is Planning

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

MARGIE MARSH comes to New York with $1,000 and a wonderful education. She keeps house with four other girls, learns stenography, and decides after three years to marry. She fails to find her ideal and Dan Shevlin, a shrewd man of the world, offers to introduce her into smart society through a Mrs. Brooke. Margie recklessly writes and signs a note, dictated by Shevlin, saying she loves him and will never regret the six months she has spent with him. She calls on Mrs. Brooke and is tempted to give up the game, but Mrs. Brooke offers to help her and she finally decides to go on. Margie buys wonderful clothes which Shevlin pays for. Mrs. Brooke opens her cottage in Newport. Margie meets her brother Mark Trelaw, a cripple. She goes for a swim, climbs up on an ugly little sail boat and meets Jerry Evesham, a most attractive young man, who takes it for granted that she is very rich.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"I SHALL live just as happily if we don't," said Margie. She was being impertinent, being horrid, in spite of her pleasant voice, and looking at him and knowing that he meant millions, she was awed at herself. Imagine being disagreeable to a man worth millions. Why, his income—what was it Carlotta had said?—every time the second hand went around there was another hundred dollars in his pockets, begging him to throw it away. Only his mother left, an old lady with an iron hand, who was lavish, but who could be austere. "Tubby's afraid of his mother. But I don't blame him. She's even afraid of herself."

Suddenly Tubby Wells guffawed. "Your little friend, Carley," he shouted, "is riding me hard." He swung back again after this admission, to which no one had paid any attention. "So you don't like me."

"I don't know you well enough to—to—"

"To dislike me. Well, you deserve a chance. I may disappoint you. Everybody likes me. I've got so many friends I don't know what to do."

"You don't need another one then," Margie pursued. She wanted to get away suddenly, she wanted to run, and his red face was so close to hers, his eyes looked so horribly appreciative. "He makes me feel like a mutton chop."

"What are you thinking?"

"I was thinking you make me feel like a mutton chop."

"I don't like mutton chops."

"Don't you? Well . . ." She rose. He got up quickly, smiling but in perplexity. "See here, come out with me for a sail tomorrow on my boat. In the morning. Will you?"

"Do you really want me to?"

He looked delighted. "More than ever when you say that!"

The guests had gone. Carlotta surveyed Margie at arms' length with shining eyes.

"How did you do it? I didn't want to discourage you, but I didn't think there was a chance. Tubby Wells has been floating around for years, and no one's had any luck. You know you're so clever, I'm really afraid of you." Then she kissed her without any appearance of fear.

But Margie's heart was pounding not with triumph or exultation. Just a feeling that somehow things were going to be difficult, unpleasant, even, perhaps, unhappy.

CHAPTER X.

IT was the kind of yacht she had seen now and then, and here she was on board, leaning back in the wicker boat-chair, watching the water streaming softly past.

Polished rails of brass and mahogany woodwork, a cabin which was like a miniature but which contained a specially built baby grand. And sailors moving about. And Tubby Wells in a flawless yachting costume, smoking a cigar.

In another hour it would be dark, but in another hour they would be home. The big bottle of champagne on the wicker table was empty, but the wine in Margie's glass bubbled untouched. Tubby Wells had had the rest. And showed it—showed it almost imperceptibly, but not quite. His lower lip sagged, his round eyes pondered.

"See here," he said. "Why don't you like me?"

"Oh, I do. Please let's talk of something else. You know everything about me."

He blew out a long puff of smoke. "Well, I won't say you're the first woman who hasn't fallen in love with me at sight, but by Gad, you're the first woman to admit you haven't. See here—you've lived in France, haven't you?"

Margie nodded.

"Well, if you could get better acquainted with me. . . I'm not so bad. If you could get better acquainted with me—why could you and I—why, listen, I could give you anything you wanted. Though I suppose you've got money enough of your own."

Suddenly Margie laughed. She wasn't afraid of him for all the power he represented. She didn't even dislike him. She pitied him a little. She, Margie Marsh, pitied a millionaire, the catch of social America! She had a thrill of pride.

"So you're suggesting that I fall in love with you automatically, and then have a romantic affair, Mr. Wells—"

"Don't call me Mr. Wells!"

"Tubby, then. You can't be serious. You can't really think—"

"You've lived abroad all your life," he broke out with heat. "You don't know what things are like back here. Good Lord. Why I could tell you things—" He broke off.

"Listen," said Margie demurely, "don't become too emotional about me, or the first thing you know you'll make a fatal blunder: you'll ask me to marry you."

His face was flushed redder than ever now. The champagne had had its effect. His voice was a little thicker.

"I'd ask you—like a shot. Like a shot! Only I'll tell you why. Give me a chance. When I was in college, I got drunk one night, and I married a girl—well, pick out the worst kind you can imagine. My mother will stand for a lot, but she'd throw me out—I know her!—if she got wind of it. She'd forgive almost anything but that. See: I'm married already and I don't dare get a divorce. Now will you believe I like you—like you really?"

A thousand things danced through Margie's brain, but the retorts, the little feminine things died away before his sincerity. He did like her, he really did like her.

"Yes. . ." It was her voice, that came from far away. "I do believe you. Only I—I couldn't feel that way about you, Tubby. I couldn't marry you—even if you were free."

He was standing, staring at the water, his back towards her. After a long time she saw him turn.

"I'm not through. I'm not quitting."

"You love me—because I don't love you."

"Well, what does it matter why—I do love you, just the same. It never takes me long to make up my mind. I thought about you—last night—and then today. . . ." His voice suddenly became plaintive and petulant, the voice of a spoiled child, demanding one more toy. "Why don't you like me? What kind of man could you like?"

She lay dreamily, with half closed eyes, while they stole in through the harbor, not answering, but thinking. What sort of man could she like? Oh, it was so hard to say—and yet she could imagine herself being hopelessly, helplessly in love.

All at once a voice hailed the yacht. The sun was going down in a final blaze of light. Looking up, Margie saw that they were passing a dingy little boat with a queer little cabin. There was a man on it, in canvas trousers, waving. Then his hands made a megaphone:

"You—forgot—to—call—on—me—today," he shouted reproachfully.

Another minute and the yacht had glided past. But still he stood there, watching, tall against the sky on his little boat, shading his eyes against the sunlight with one brown hand.

Then something happened to Margie Marsh, something that was half pain. She felt unhappy and distressed without knowing why. What was the matter, what was the matter?

Jerry Evesham—the name sang on in her head. Jerry Evesham—who admitted he hadn't a penny. But suddenly she was more afraid of him than of anyone she had met in her life afraid of him as one is afraid of an unavoidable thing, too strong to be resisted.

Tubby Wells was saying something—she looked at him with wide, thoughtful eyes, unlistening. She was thinking of the apartment in New York and the four girls she had left. Perhaps she should have stayed there. It was all right to do this sort of thing if you were cool-headed and sensible. But as it was—! "Oh, I hope I'm not going to be unhappy," Margie almost prayed to herself. "Don't let me be unhappy!"

From Tubby's sleek roadster slipped out and ran up the steps of Carlotta Brooke's cottage. It had grown dark quite suddenly, and there was a fire blazing brightly at one end of the room. Someone rose and came forward.

"Let me have a look and see what you've done, Carley," said a familiar voice. And a hand strayed out and caught her wrist. "By George, I don't wonder!"

Dan Shevlin was looking down at her, with the lurking touch of contempt that seemed a part of his slow smile.

"Don't tell me you've done it," Carlotta burst out. "Don't tell me that Tobby Wells—"

Margie shook her head. And thoughtlessly she said: "You see, he's married already—to some girl

WILSON'S REFORMS HIT PRINCETON'S TRUSTEES

Life and Letters of War President

Carrying Through His Program of Regeneration Won Many Friends But Also Developed Opposition

The reorganization of Princeton University undertaken by Wilson as president, was hard but engrossing work, as described yesterday in the Sun-Telegraph installment of "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson." He personally solicited money, applying to, among others, Andrew Carnegie. He installed a new academic system and introduced new blood into the faculty. While he met with some opposition, he received much loyal support. In the end the Wilson plan became popular and he was highly praised for his initiative and courage.

By RAY STANNARD BAKER

(Copyright, 1927, by Doubleday, Page & Co.)

A CAMPUS GEM AT PRINCETON

Whig Hall and John Grier Hibben (later president of the university) who was a foremost opponent of Woodrow Wilson during the academic battle while Wilson was at the head of the institution.

Background of Princeton Battle

WILSON had made a brave beginning at Princeton with the reorganization of the courses of study and the introduction of the revolutionary preceptorial system. But it was only a beginning!

"We cannot stop there," he told the alumni.

He attacked the problem of strengthening the faculty with especial enthusiasm. It was even more important to secure the ablest men in the country to head departments than it was to find suitable preceptors. His scraps of diary and his correspondence from 1903 to 1906 overflow with the eagerness—almost the passionate eagerness—of his pursuit. When he found the man he wanted he would never let go until he had secured him!

A good example was the invitation in January, 1904, to Prof. Frank Thilly to take the chair of psychology.

. . . "Woodrow Wilson's epistle was so gracious, so wholehearted, so human that I accepted his invitation to visit him at Princeton without further consideration," says Prof. Thilly, who is now at Cornell.

We have Wilson's notes in his diary as to what happened when Thilly arrived:

"Principal interest of the day centered in the arrival of Prof. Frank Thilly, of the University of Missouri, of whom we have been thinking as Baldwin's successor, and who had generously consented to come here for a conference . . .

"Ellen and I took dinner at the Hibbens' to meet Prof. Thilly, whom we found most ingenuous and interesting—a man after our own hearts in simplicity and genuineness—and withal of singular penetration and charm in his talk—a highly trained native American of the Lincoln type, with his faculties released by education of unusual range and thoroughness."

A Magnet to Scholars

Men joined the faculty, indeed, because of the intellectual regeneration of Princeton which was taking place under Wilson's leadership. His new experiments were attracting serious attention throughout the country. Educators felt that here was virile experimentation, healthy growth. Professor E. G. Conklin writes:

"A professor from another university, who came to Princeton about the same time that I did, said to me: 'What brought you to Princeton?' I answered, 'Woodrow Wilson. And you?' 'The same,' he said. Both of us were inspired by his ideals of a university, of education, of life, and we wanted to join with him in the great work which he was doing."

Wilson made personal and social contracts an important factor in building up his faculty. When new professors or instructors came to Princeton, President Wilson always made it a point to call upon them, even though in later years it became an arduous matter.

"I am sure that you will enjoy the life at Princeton, it is natural, simple, cordial, and there are many good fellows to supply flavor to the intercourse," he wrote to H. A. Garfield, who went to Princeton to the chair of politics.

He "did not object to opposition if it was clear and objective. Dean Fine was constantly disagreeing with him and debating with him," but "he was always thinking away ahead o' the rest of us," recalls Prof. Edward Capps. On occasion he was "so intent upon an objective that he was not careful of people's feelings." Prof. Harper remembers a sharp discussion in faculty meeting in which Wilson disagreed with him. On his return home after the meeting, just at his own door, he felt someone touch him on the arm. It was Wilson, eager to explain that nothing he said was meant as a personal criticism.

"He never flattered anyone in his life. I never saw him do a dishonest thing," Prof. Harper says.

Such things as these bound men to Wilson—and held them through all the years. There were later to come disagreements and enmities, which will be considered in their proper places. A strong man, thinking ahead of his contemporaries, determined in his pursuit of his vision, is certain sooner or later to meet opposition and to make enemies.

Increases in the faculty—especially the development of the preceptorial system and the expansion of the science departments, in which Wilson was intensely interested—involved the problem of new buildings. The physical reorganization of the university. In this activity Wilson has been concerned from the beginning. He had a keen appreciation of architecture, and no inconsiderable knowledge of it.

He Knew Architecture

Henry B. Thompson, who has been chairman for years of the Princeton trustees' committee on grounds and buildings, says of Wilson:

"I think of that period relating to the architecture of the university with much satisfaction for it disclosed so many delightful and fine traits in Wilson. We were generally in accord, although my first experience was absolutely the opposite. Making my first official call at his office in '79 Hall, after being elected trustee, in the course of conversation I said, 'Mr. President, there seems to be quite a difference of opinion on the location of the new laboratories—the physical and biological'—his answer was, 'Thompson, as long as I am president of Princeton I propose to dictate the architectural policy of the university.' Then I remarked, 'To the extent of one vote on the grounds and building committee, and as I have one vote, I hope we shall agree.'

"On that particular issue of the location of the buildings we disagreed, and I outvoted him in committee; but the following summer we were near neighbors, occupying cottages at the Ausable Club Reservation in the Adirondacks, and we spent a good many hours over the drawings and specifications of Guyot Hall and the Palmer Laboratory, and we worked in absolute harmony.

"Wilson had instinctively a fine sense of proportion and a keen appreciation for good architecture. His vision for the Princeton campus was a beautiful vision. I have heard him say more than once, 'Why should not a laboratory be as susceptible to good architecture as any other building? I do not believe in considering them merely as workshops.'

It was Wilson who backed with all his power the employment of a supervising architect to meet what one of the trustees called "the deplorable habit of employing a new architect and using a new style of architecture and a new material for every new building that is erected." Ralph Adams Cram, perhaps the greatest authority on Gothic architecture in America, was chosen and has held the position ever since.

"I was impressed with the extreme interest shown by President Wilson in all these matters," Ralph Adams Cram has said, "an interest which extended to the minor details and demonstrated a very broad grasp both of the practical and the architectural principles involved. As I remember, I always obtained from the president the most intelligent and generous support for what I was trying to do, and he always seemed at once to see the problems in the broadest manner. . . .

Reforming the Trustees

"I remember particularly how once, when we were discussing some large sketch plans, Mr. Wilson got down on the floor and worked over them with men in the most intimate and interested manner."

As a place of beauty and distinction, Princeton owes much of what it is today to Woodrow Wilson; to the determination with which he adhered to his ideals.

Wilson's fire of regeneration extended even to the board of trustees. It was a large board and several of the members, as often happens in such cases, were not only useless but positively detrimental to the functioning of the university. This was clearly recognized by some of the more active members, but they dreaded to take action regarding their fellow-trustees.

It was at best a disagreeable business and matters drifted along until the end of 1905. Certain trustees then proposed to seek the resignation of the objectionable members. A request prepared by Mr. Taylor Payne was signed by a number of the trustees, but when the moment came no one of them wanted to undertake the actual task, and Wilson himself agreed to do it. An appointment was arranged in the office of a trust company in lower New York by one of the oldest and most distinguished members of the board of trustees, who, after welcoming Wilson, literally turned and ran out of the room." The abandoned trustee came in a few minutes later with a bundle of documents which he evidently counted upon to exculpate him.

"I will not trouble you to refer to your papers, Mr. —," said Wilson. "Under the circumstances it is for the good of Princeton University that you retire from the board. In case you do not offer your resignation I shall move your removal at the next meeting of the board."

His Influence Grows

Two resignations were promptly forthcoming.

From 1906 onward Wilson's influence in the appointment of new members of the board was considerable. He was charged by his enemies during the great controversies of 1909 and and 1910 with seeking the appointment only of "personal admirers." What he really wanted was "live men," not of the kind so often chosen to moribund boards as a "distinguished honor," but men who would contribute vitally to the upbuilding of Princeton; and toward the end of his administration, when every appointment was either pro or anti Wilson, he did seek men who were sympathetic with his policies—as his enemies sought men who would defeat them. Had he craved "personal admiration" he could have had it at a lower price: he could have rested upon the well won laurels of the achievements of 1906 without carrying forward the tireless campaigns from 1907 to 1910, without the suffering and defeat which his pursuit of his ultimate ideals so swiftly invited. He waged his battles utterly regardless of personalities, his own included—too regardless!

It is astonishing that he was able to accomplish so much in so short a time. There were those even during this earlier time who began to smoke their heads over the speed of his progress. "Wilson drives too hard." He was too swift, too eager, for men of slower and more cautious mind. He was "too intense." Sometimes he himself expressed his impatience with the "human intractables" that curbed him in and held him back.

"Day of routine. Kept in my office till quarter of 5 on business that might have been finished before 3 if academic men were only prompt in movement and brief in statement."

Opposition Develops

It would have been a miracle—unexampled in human events—if such a career could have continued unchecked or unopposed. Men stop this side the stars! Diversity is as much a principle of life as unity. It is amazing, indeed, that Wilson should have had so clear a course even for three years. It is amazing that he should have been able to bear the physical strain of such labors, let alone the intense mental activity. He was soon, indeed, to pay the hard penalty of another physical breakdown.

With the achievement of the preceptorial system in 1906—and the reorganization of the university that went with it—Wilson's splendid impetus somewhat spent itself; and the forces of opposition, diverse ideas and ambitions, which had appeared years previously, a cloud no larger than a man's hand in the clear heavens of Wilson's aspiration, began to spread and darken—began, indeed, to challenge his leadership. There is a point in the career of every crusader when he exhausts the reservoir of public idealism—when he makes further progress only upon the passion of his own purpose. The struggle was to gather force and bitterness: until, during the years from 1907 to 1910, it was to supersede everything else.

At the heart of the most important phase of the opposition—that centering around the plans for a graduate college—was one of the ablest and shrewdest men on the Princeton faculty, Andrew F. West. He also, like Wilson, was of Scotch-Irish descent, the son of a Presbyterian minister; the same hard-knit fighting stock. Three years older than Wilson, West had been graduated from Princeton in 1874, a year before Wilson entered as a freshman. He had returned to the university as professor of Latin in 1883—the year that Wilson gave up his starveling law practice in Atlanta to go to Johns Hopkins. He was an eager scholar and philologist. He had a gifted and lively mind; no one could turn a better Latin inscription or organize a finer pageant for a ceremonial occasion. He loved the outward amenities, the "pomp of place." the "accouterment of things." He was an ambitious man, "witty and kindly," robust in physique in those days, "a 240-pounder—with a sea captain's ruddy skin, large features, hearty voice and manner." . . .

While Wilson and West were both in the earlier days of Wilson's professorship, heartily in accord regarding the sad administrative situation at Princeton, and both were progressives, Wilson began early to distrust West and to disagree with him regarding what he considered his tendency toward "exclusiveness."

Wilson and West

There was, however, no outward evidence of hostility on either side. While West himself probably had aspirations for the presidency of the university at the time of Wilson's election, he showed no mark of jealousy or ill will toward Wilson and was cordial in his proffers of aid in the difficult problems confronting the new president.

Raymond Fosdick, a friend of both men, said they came to hate each other like true Scotsmen, but back of it all lay the kind of mutual respect which one hard fighter feels for another. At the time that scandalous stories began to be circulated about Wilson, Fosdick chanced to meet West and found him indignant. While Wilson might be beneath contempt in other ways, he did not have that fault!

The origin of the Graduate College controversy, which later ended with Woodrow Wilson leaving Princeton and becoming a candidate for Governor of New Jersey, will be described tomorrow.

his mother wouldn't approve of— and he doesn't even dare get a divorce for fear of having her find out."

"What?" Shevlin's voice was sharp. And there were questions, quick, brief question which as she answered them made Margie feel guilty she had betrayed a confi- saw Shevlin smiling Brooke, and a brief f glances. In the door- Trelaw had appeared, silently, his withered arm close to his side.

Then all at once Shevlin's eyes turned to Margie. They rested upon her face uncomfortably. In a flash she knew something else. There was Jerry Evesham who hadn't a penny—there was Tubby Wells who had a secret—there was Dan Shevlin who had her in debt to him—and each of the three liked her.

She murmured an excuse and slipped upstairs to dress. But her hands were shaking with sudden nervousness, even while she told herself not to be silly. Nothing could happen to her, nothing could possibly happen to her. Only why —why had she ever given that letter to Dan Shevlin in which she had accused herself of the very worst? Well, it was too late now. She'd go through with things—she wasn't afraid!

CHAPTER XI.

WHAT was the matter, really the matter? This sense of regret, this feeling that things were wrong somehow—was it only a mood?

"I'm out to marry a millionaire," said Margie Marsh between her teeth. "And I've got to play game!"

Still, moving around now in the little sea-green and ivory bedroom, her mind came back obstinately to the picture below stairs: face set in silent Brooke, and Shev- n, and swift, sig-

Some... is up. Margie felt it in her bones. Something was happening about which she knew nothing. A secret hadn't been told. The one thing Mrs. Brooke had left unsaid. Shevlin's strange glance.

Suddenly Margie felt uncomfortable. "I'm pretending to myself this is a romantic adventure, sordid, shady Dan Shevlin. were back in the apartment, back with the Pantheon Finance Company."

Her smile was rueful as she lifted a filmy evening frock and gently shook out its folds. The little clock in the leather case said that dinner was 10 minutes away. She sped into the bathroom of gleaming tile, plated mirrors, burnished porcelain.

On a little shelf a jar of special cold cream, tiny, frosted bottles of perfume, powder, mascara, Parisian rouge.

"Thank the Lord, I don't need all that stuff," she half sighed, adding to herself: "Not yet!" A dab of cold cream and then a long, slow brushing of her hair, so that it looked like a poster with its sheen of light in the deep blackness of it.

Afterwards the long beige silk stockings that made her feel as if she were in the Follies as she drew them on, the brocaded evening slippers, the gown. Then a final anxious examination, wrinkling her nose thoughtfully at a freckle on it, and she was confident again.

Clothes—you could be anything with clothes—even an adventuress. She went down the stairs, thinking of the day, thinking of Tubby Wells, not afraid any more.

But down in the drawing room there was a curious excitement in the air, a feeling of strain and struggle. Mark Trelaw had disappeared. The silver cocktail shaker stood at Shevlin's elbow. He was leaning forward, the light making little pin points of brightness in his eyes.

And Carlotta Brooke, very quiet, sat facing him. Only, Margie noticed, her fingers, clasped together, were moving one against the other, nervously, tensely.

Margie stood, slim as a young tree, with youth and hope in her face, so that any man who looked once would also look twice. Yet it was as if she weren't there, as if she were still upstairs. And their voices, their low, swift tones, blended a kind of feverish hurry with anger, ignoring her presence.

Shevlin's hand around the stem of the cocktail glass . . . his smiling, hard eyes. "Yes, you would!" he said. "Yes, you would! A week of starving, Carlotta, my poor Carlotta—and you'd change your mind. Why, you're talking like a fool!"

A pale flush came and went on Mrs. Brooke's face. Her voice said that she hated this man, but her eyes devoured him with hopeless love, pleading somehow in spite of her cool laugh.

"You don't know what I mean. You couldn't! Only I'm sick of it, sick of it—why I'd rather—rather Why not ... get along—oh, ...erly miserable. If ...ou I shan't know right from wrong!"

"Happy day!" he flung at her. "You can be a beast!" The feminine voice shook now. "I—I wish I'd never met you. Oh, how I wish I'd never met you! . . .

And this Wells—this matter of Tubby Wells—"

"Cut it!" He spoke with sharp command, and his gesture indicated Margie across the long room. Mrs. Brooke's troubled eyes flashed for a moment on Margie, and she tried to check herself. But her breath was coming hard.

Margie felt uncomfortably as if she had been eavesdropping. You couldn't make conversation at a moment like this. Only what had they been talking about—what had Tubby Wells to do with it—why was Mrs. Brooke so upset, her eyes so wretched?

A relief to think suddenly of the man on the dingy boat, the man with the straight, young body and brown skin and frank eyes, who looked honest and decent and kind and strong, who looked—well, who looked so much like a man. Jerry Evesham . . . nice name. And the way he had waved at her! The desire to see him again, to know him well, rippled through her.

Tomorrow, without saying anything, she would go down to the beach, perhaps swim out again. Why did she want to laugh, cheerfully, happily, thinking of him? He, too, was young—and everybody else in the whole world was old—like Dan Shevlin here, like even Carlotta Brooke with her air of tired knowledge. Suddenly an insane picture jumped into Margie's mind. She saw herself pushing her fingers through Jerry Evesham's hair, and then with a laugh, running, running. And he would come running behind her, and his strong arms would suddenly circle around her, and . . . what a fool she was!

To Be Continued.

Love's Embers — Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" — By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Gives a Veiled Hint of Danger to Someone He Does Not Name

I WAS distinctly piqued by the air of suppressed amusement which Dicky's manner had betrayed ever since his visit to the mysterious foreigners who had rented Mr. Grimsey's shack at the rear of our farm, and my resentment was not lessened by the quizzical look in his eyes as he said that he supposed I wanted to know what he had found out about these men.

"Naturally, I am interested—and curious," I told him, "but I do not expect my curiosity to be gratified. You have the air of a small boy who calls out, 'I know something which I won't tell, he-he-he-he-he-he!'"

My tone held both pettishness and amusement and the instant the words were out of my mouth I could have bitten my tongue through in chagrin. Dicky and I were not on the familiar terms which warranted either friendliness or irritation. Rather frigid courtesy was the standard which we tacitly had set ourselves since our agreement to keep up a pretense of marital union for Junior's sake, and I was furious at myself for breaking through it.

Dicky shot a quick, astonished glance at me, then chuckled, as if involuntarily.

"Very astute, old dear," he said, executing a burlesqued formal obeisance "but—hardly justified by the facts. I was a bit amused, I will admit, by the contrast between the desperadoes pictured by you and Mrs. Ticer, and the harmless vagabonds I found up in the shack. Beyond the fact that they stand quite in need of a bathtub and some razors they aren't dangerous at all—to us."

Was it my fancy, or did he hesitate perceptibly before he uttered the last two words?

"The red-bearded man is especially harmless," he went on, "just a big moron."

"I don't agree with you," I said tartly. "He seems to me more of a ruffian than the other. And he understands and speaks English, I'm sure, while pretending he doesn't know anything about it."

Again that spasm of silent mirth was perceptible in Dicky's face.

"He explained that to me," he said, "when I taxed him with it. We had quite a conversation in French. He speaks English with an atrocious accent, and is sensitive about it, so pretends ignorance."

I stared at Dicky in irritated astonishment. The red-bearded man was the last person I should suspect of reticence or sensitiveness. If he really were a foreigner, I should have pronounced him the type who would have flaunted his knowledge of English, no matter how meager, instead of hiding his achievement.

"I'm relieved that you pronounce them not dangerous—to us," I repeated and accentuated his hesitation. "Does that mean that I need take no precautions concerning Junior?"

"No more than the excellent ones with which you always surround him," he returned, his voice taking on a formality which told me that he was remembering again the peculiar conditions under which we were living. "That dog has been trained never to touch a child no matter what provocation a youngster gives him. And he is trained to let women alone also, and a man who stands perfectly still is safe. However, they will see that he is safely kenneled when at the shack, and muzzled when they take him with them. And while I do not recommend the men as playmates for our young son, yet they would take care of him and return him safely if they should find him strayed from home."

I rose from my seat abruptly.

"Nevertheless," I said tartly, "I think I shall take very good care that Junior does not stray beyond the yard. Your confidence in these strangers is touching, but—not especially convincing to me. I am afraid I am prejudiced. Was there anything more you wished to tell me?"

"Yes," said my husband, a bit stiffly, "there is. I wish to speak to you about Miss Lincoln."

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Friday, October 28

The highest knowledge is the knowledge of good and evil, the knowledge of the wisdom of life.—SOCRATES.

A LIVELY and eventful day is foretold by the interesting train of lunar aspects. With the luminaries in friendly aspect, employment should bring recognition or increase in a limited degree. But the lunar trine to Uranus may stir up congested situations and make way for some radical change, either in work or environment.

Conservatively managed and in connection with old established institutions or individuals, the fortunes should be surprisingly stabilized.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a lively and eventful year, with change of benefit to work, employment and environment. Connections with long-established institutions or elderly persons may bring a stabilizing influence.

A child born on this day should be energetic, skillful, adventurous and industrious. It may make frequent changes but should succeed in employment, science or inventions of a high order. It may be studious and persistent in research.

For the Lovelorn — By ELEANOR GALE

La Rue

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have quite a story to tell even though I am only in my teens, so here goes. I am motherless, have only one sister and Dad. I do not have the kind of a home a girl my age should have, but I am doing very well in the business world so far, and am very proud of the fact. I never believed in the three very much discussed questions, until about a year ago. I got very disgusted with life as a whole, and began indulging in smoking and drinking. I thought nothing of it at the time, and believed, and kept on believing in it, until I met him. Not until then, Miss Gale, did I realize what it really meant to do such things as smoking and drinking. Even though I believed in these two things I never did believe in kissing. Then one night I got the shock of my life. We were out riding and I happened to see a cigaret, and picking it up, and seeing what brand it was. He (the one) turned on me and told me what he thought of a girls who smoke and drink. I said nothing, but later my girl friend accidentally let it slip that I did these things. He then said he could forget my address and 'phone number, meaning he would not see me any more. Then together, my girl friend and myself finally made him see why I had started these things. He forgave me, and nothing more was said about it for about four weeks. Then one night he told me what kind of a life he used to lead. I was absolutely shocked, and didn't know what to say for a while. Then I told him he certainly wasn't worth much if he thought he could get away with what he had done then criticize girls for indulging in the things I did. He begged me to forget him, and I did. And, oh Miss Gale, in spite of all the trouble that is going on at home, I am happy when I think of him. Miss Gale, I am one month and two days older than he. Does that make too much difference? He has been talking of being married, to his parents, but not until four days ago, and his parents consent. They did not know me well enough before, but now I have several invitations to his home, to go out with the family, and several other things. I have had my engagement ring for almost one month, and we have the date set already. But, Miss Gale, do you think it is too early for me to marry even in view of the fact, that I have almost no home at all? That is the question I want your splendid advice on. Just a few words to the other readers. Oh girls and boys, if you haven't started these things, don't start them now. But, of course, "experience is the best teacher," as the old saying goes. You may be surprised, but even though I wouldn't do those things any more, I am not sorry I did do them, because, I found out what it really means to have a fellow's love, whom you love also. Miss Gale, please advise me, as I would like to know what to do.

LA RUE.

I do think you are too young, my dear. Marriage is a life-time job, you know, and you must be very sure of yourself before entering into it. Why not wait a year and see if you still care as much?

Satisfied

DEAR MISS GALE:

I love to read your column. I want to say to your girl readers, Miss Gale, that they should not pet or drink or smoke for that matter. Many of your girls seem undecided. I, too, was once on the verge. Know what cured me? I tried acting like the rest for one evening. I mean petting, neither of the other two. I was downright disgusted, hating myself more than the fellow. Now I go with an honestly decent fellow, yet I'm not sorry I tried the other, for the cure was certain. Try it just once, you girls on the verge, and if you're of a high type naturally, you'll join the right side. Now a question, Miss Gale. Should the young man step back allowing his young lady to board a street car alone when other ladies are present? If he does this the young lady is stranded and yet he cannot expect her to wait with him if he does wait for the other ladies to get on first. Advise me.

SATISFIED.

I am glad you have decided as you have, my dear. You are quite right. Wouldn't it solve the problem if you waited with the young man until the other women have boarded the car, then let him help you?

H.

DEAR MISS GALE:

I was very much pleased with the letter written by "A Decent Girl." She voiced my sentiments exactly when she said a fellow did not care for a girl who smokes and drinks, etc. I would very much like to meet this girl who comes up to my ideals.

H.

You understand, of course, that my correspondents can meet only through this department. No names or addresses are ever given.

Lonesome Joe

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a constant reader of your wonderful column in the Sun-Telegraph and I consider your advice very wholesome. Here is my trouble. I am in love with a fellow who is about 19 years of age. He is nice looking and has a wonderful and pleasing personality which makes all girls like him a great deal. His clothes are always up-to-date and everything is the latest. Well I am ... years of age, considered rather nice looking, dress up-to-date and I am very popular with all the fellows. I have so many fellows I hardly think I could count them, but I love this one fellow best of any of them. I met him through a girl friend of mine and went to parties with his crowd. Through my friend's jealousy we fell out. He called me several times but I was never home. I met him several times later and he made a date, in fact he made a few dates but I did not fill them although I told him I was there, but he found out later that I wasn't so he told me he would be friends with me but never make a date. Well I met him again and went out riding and I asked him when I'd see him again and he said that it was up to me. Well he said he would call me but never did. When he sees me he always speaks and looks pleasant. He goes to his boy friend's house every evening to see him and I suppose when he has nowhere to go that's when he comes to see me. He lives in the suburbs so it takes him a while to come. The last time I saw him he wanted me to wear his ring and he would wear mine, but I refused and everytime I talk about going with another fellow he always says: "I guess there's no chance for me," and I'm just wild about him. Please tell me what you think of me and tell me what to do because there's not a better living, clean fellow that can be found on earth for me. I am. LONESOME JOE.

I don't blame him for not caring to make another date, after your breaking so many, my dear. That is certainly no way to make him trust you and care for you. However, it is still your privilege to invite him to come to see you, so why not try it again?

"The Mother Takes the Place of God and the Angels"

DR. COPELAND

THERE came to me the other day the finest letter I ever had. It was an anonymous letter, signed "A Mother." I have no idea who wrote it, but it is the most touching thing I ever read.

Some time ago I wrote an article about rocking the cradle, paying a tribute to mothers. I spoke about the pioneer women and their hardships. My correspondent quoted this and said:

"Yes, they certainly went through terrible experiences and they were wonderful women. Yet I feel sure there are mothers today going through experiences almost as trying."

This noble woman suggested that she herself may be having trials quite as great. "I am the mother of nine dear children, all living, the oldest 19 and the youngest 2 years of age. My husband was just a poor working man and when my baby was just 6 months old, he died."

She speaks of the past: "I couldn't and wouldn't begin to tell of the struggle and hardships that we went through during the 20 years of married life. But through it all I have tried oh! so hard to be as near a perfect mother as I possibly could be." Wonderful woman!

"Three of my oldest children are working now," she concludes, "and I do plain sewing. We are trying to keep the home nest together, and we know that God is watching over us."

Think of a woman like that, with all her tribulations, taking time to write me that her "heart alowed" over the story of the pioneer women! Why, my friends, all mothers are pioneer women. Isn't it so?

Child bearing and child caring, home making, with all the sacrifices of motherhood and wifehood, are just as exacting, just as exciting, just as soul-probing, as in the roughest and crudest days of pioneer life. I never thought of it in just that way before, but I can see that it is true.

How true it is that because He could not be everywhere God made mothers. The mother takes the place of God and the angels. What would life be if every mother died when the baby was born?

If there is one duty resting upon society which may be said to be greater than any other, it is the duty to guard the life and health of the mothers. The trouble is the mothers won't let anybody lighten their burdens. They glory in hard work, responsibility and lost sleep.

But we must insist that these burdens and obligations be shared with us. It isn't fair that mother should make all the sacrifices, take the neck of the chicken and "only a little" of the best dish in the meal.

Let's begin today to make mother's work a little easier. In the most tactful way possible let's take over some of her self imposed duties. To make a mother smile is to make the angels sing!

Thank you, dear anonymous lady, for the kind words you sent me out of your own burdensome but happy life!

The Coquette "She Plays the Prelude to Your Fate!"

Drawn by NELL BRINKLEY

MUSIC was a young muse once—but she was never a simple maid. A siren from the day she was born on the purple Ægean Sea. Always a thrilling, complicated spirit, who has filled the world with beauty, and sometimes nigh lured the senses of a sensible person away! Sometimes she sheds the spell of peace; sometimes of homely longing; sometimes of ecstacy; BUT sometimes she sings a Siren song before an Ambush.

Then she is hand-in-glove with the coquette.

The young man, unsuspectingly wandering through the Indian Summer woods—this young man wandering through the golden-turning woods will hear a love voice calling Fancy deeper into aster-purpled ways.

"The first round in the song of Love!
Playing the prelude of his fate."

He will see just a girl feathering the strings of a ukulele. He never liked the things. And he didn't care much, ever before, for flappers. Vivacious ones! But music and a girl seems a harmless picture. And it isn't dangerous just to linger a moment and listen to a pretty voice and the tinkle of strings. He will see the silvery spider's web like a faery-queen's handkerchief laced in the Autumn leaves above her head. But he will not see the symbol.

And he will not hear the golden voice of Cupid tuning in beside her. And he will not see the shadow of another plump form behind, intent, his arrow tipped with fire and strung on silver set ready in his rosy hand.

An innocent picture—full of hidden menace. If he knew, he would gallop away from there like Stephen Leacock's knight, "in all directions!"

Music is the friend of Cupid and the Coquette.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

What Is Give and Take?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"A LITTLE more give and take is all you need to make your acting successful."

This was the kindly comment of a seasoned actor on the work of a certain young and inexperienced actress.

A little more give and take would also transform any a love affair from failure to success, salvage many a marriage.

Just what is this give and take, which means so much to the success of romance?

We are all of us in this world as dependent on each other as bricks in a wall. And, of course, this is especially true of a man and girl who love each other and plan to join their lives through marriage, as it is also of families.

Since we are dependent on each other for our welfare and happiness, we must constantly give way to the wishes and ideas of others, giving up our own preferences, or at least compromising good-humoredly. The person who gives way most gracefully and considerately is usually the best loved.

"I take pleasure in presenting"—we are all familiar with the courteous phrase. If you take real pleasure in presenting or giving, you have learned the secret of give and take, that open sesame to successful marriage.

A friend of mine who has been delightfully happy through over twenty-five years of married life, told me the other day that she attributed her husband's happiness and her own to an attitude of mind which can be summed up in the phrase, "Well, why not?"

Her husband was ambitious for a college education. Soon after their marriage his wife, realizing how near to his heart was this dream, said, "Well, why not?"

Then the two planned and managed in such a way that by working on the university daily paper and studying at home nights, by strictest economy, her husband was able to graduate from the "U" with honor.

A few years later my friend was seized with the desire to try her luck as a writer. There were two small children to be cared for. The plan seemed on the face of it impracticable. But she felt the urge to write.

"Well, why not!" smiled her husband. And he bought her a typewriter.

So a tense domestic situation was avoided. The writing venture proved a distinct success and made money, which brought welcome luxuries to the family.

A marriage where there is this pleasant spirit of give and take, this willingness to adjust and compromise, can hardly fail. Nor can it prove other than interesting and stimulating. Each partner to such a marriage gets full benefit of the other's ideas and point of view. It may be truly said that their pleasures are doubled, their griefs divided.

If to take pleasure in giving is necessary to lastingly happy romance, it is equally necessary to accept favors and attentions from each other with grace and charm. And this applies even to taking advice.

"I am going to break my engagement," a pretty girl said to me the other day. "I shall miss Jim dreadfully. But we quarrel all the time, so what's the use!

"He insists on giving me advice. He seems to think he knows more than I do. I can't stand that!"

Silly girl! All men love to give advice. So do most women. If you wish to keep a man happily devoted to you, let him give you advice to his heart's content. Accept it gracefully and gratefully. And follow it—sometimes. There is real pleasure in giving, real joy in eager service. Do not deprive the man who loves you of the pleasure of showing you the little attentions that indicate his affection.

Give and take is merely the secret of happy adjustment. If you hope to wear the very crown of life's joy through successful marriage, you may well begin today to cultivate the spirit of Give and Take, that charming attribute of harmony and the "kingdom of heaven within," which brings to marriage the dear companionship of the One Man and mutual service and untiring affection.

Pepper Steak

The steak is again broiled in the usual way. Take six large peppers and place them in the oven until the skins seem to peel. Then remove all the skin, take out the seed cone and chop the peppers with a Spanish onion. When chopped add a cupful of tomato juice and stew until the peppers are tender. Add salt, a little sugar and a half-cupful of hot cream to which a saltspoonful of bicarbonate of soda has been added. Thicken with a little butter and flour rubbed to a paste and when the steak is ready turn over the dressing.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found how to save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for results. It gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Why Is Fat So Rare?
There's a reason

Do you realize how uncommon are the people with excess fat? At one time there were many times as many. But men and women came to realize that fat blighted beauty, efficiency and health.

One great factor in this change is a discovery made some two decades ago. Research men found a cause of excess fat. It lies in lack of some elements which turn food into fuel and energy. They found a way to supply those elements.

Twenty years ago that discovery was embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People began to use them back in 1907. They told others the results. Thus the use has grown to millions of boxes. You can everywhere see the slender figures which today prevail.

Users of Marmola are not forced to abnormal exercise or diet. They combat the cause of obesity. They simply take four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal. And they gain at the same time new health and vitality.

The formula of Marmola comes in every box. Also the reasons for results. We do this to ward off any fear of harm. You know what you are taking, and why.

Excess fat blights beauty and health and efficiency. If you suffer from it, learn the right way to combat it. Do this now. Order a box of Marmola and let the results tell you how long to continue. You will be amazed and delighted in many ways. And you will learn that excess fat is inexcusable today.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out he will get them at once from his jobber.

Ritzy Rosey

RITZY ROSEY feels ambitious, so she's going to write. Just what, she hasn't decided. For the occasion she has procured spectacles with roseate rims to match her frock. It is quite the thing, even if you don't actually need theme, to wear glasses with rims to match the color of your frock. Mauve with a pin stripe of black or almost any other combination may be found. Ritzy is also following the new fad of wearing her wrist watch above her elbow.

Crystal Forest.

Crystal trees are the last word in table decorations. The trees are 18 to 20 inches tall, set in a small tree trunk-like base, and the trees are proportioned to their height. A glass plateau, round, square oblong or rectangular, is the proper thing to rest the tree on.

The trunks and branches of the trees are made of white wired cord in silk which adds to the beauty of their appearance. There are trees in imitation of the spruces made of the long finely cut crystal beads tipped with the fine round beads, and the cones are made of the round beads. The branches are thick and under the lights they are very lovely and brilliant. They look as trees do after an ice storm when trees are weighted and glistening with a coating of ice. Other trees are mulberry in full fruit, apple trees and others of the garden variety.

Side Trimmings

Casting aside all idea of balance, dress, coat and millinery fashions all sponsor the side effect in trimming. Side drapes on frocks, side closings on coats and side trimmings on hats definitely accent a one-sided fashion argument.

Frederick Warde, at Seventy-Six, "Grand Old Man of the Theater," Comes to Pittsburgh for Lecture

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

FREDERICK WARDE is in town. There was a time when this announcement would have stirred the hearts of all the gallery gods. Today the gallery gods are gray-haired old men, and there are no new gods in the gallery. Frederick Warde is in town to lecture to the Academy of Science and Art tonight on the glories of the old days when the gallery was full of gods.

GEORGE SEIBEL

This grand old man of the theater has just celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of his first appearance on the stage. He is now 76 years old, so he must have been sixteen when he ran away from home and made his debut in a theater at Sunderland, England, as one of the murderers in "Macbeth."

His stage career extended over 55 years. Since he retired he has been lecturing on the drama, with readings from the parts he made famous.

He has been leading man for Booth and Barrett—but that was half a century ago. He has been a star shining by his own light, and in conjunction with Louis James—but that also is ancient history.

In the good old days Frederick Warde came to Pittsburgh at least once every year. He and Thomas W. Keene were the great rivals in the affection of the gods. There were debates as bitter over who was the better Richard or Shylock as are now waged over the relative qualities of Dempsey and Tunney.

Warde was born in England—at Wardington, in Oxfordshire—on February 23, 1851. He came to the United States in 1874. His great roles, aside from the Shakespearean repertoire, were Virginius in the tragedy by Sheridan Knowles and Richelieu in the drama by Bulwer Lytton. He was associated at various times with John McCullough, Charlotte Cushman and Adelaide Neilson, renowned players in their time.

Besides lecturing on Shakespearean subjects, Mr. Warde has written several books—"Shakespeare's Fools," "Fifty Years of Make-Believe," and "Shakespearean Studies Simplified." He takes all honors and praise of his past achievements with beautiful humility.

"It is not from personal pride, but the knowledge that I have done something for the art to which I have been devoted for more than half a century," is the way he expresses his satisfaction.

Tell it to the ancient gallery gods—tell them that Hamlet, Macbeth, Shylock, Richard, Othello are all in town. Frederick Warde is lecturing tonight before Pittsburgh Academy of Science in the Carnegie Lecture Hall, and tomorrow night at the Westinghouse Club in Wilkinsburg. The gallery gods will be there to greet their ancient idol, and no doubt the new generation will learn that there were giants in those days.

Fast and Funny!

The fastest, keenest, funniest college picture ever made, with Marion Davies in the irresistible role of a daring, dashing co-ed.

Marion was the most popular girl at old Bingham. She could answer any problem in love but her "Math" was not so forte. Her logic on the campus was above reproach, but her logic in the classroom always got E minus.

A story of a stockingless girl who brought chaos and confusion to a campus, but whose presence made the stars shine just a little brighter.

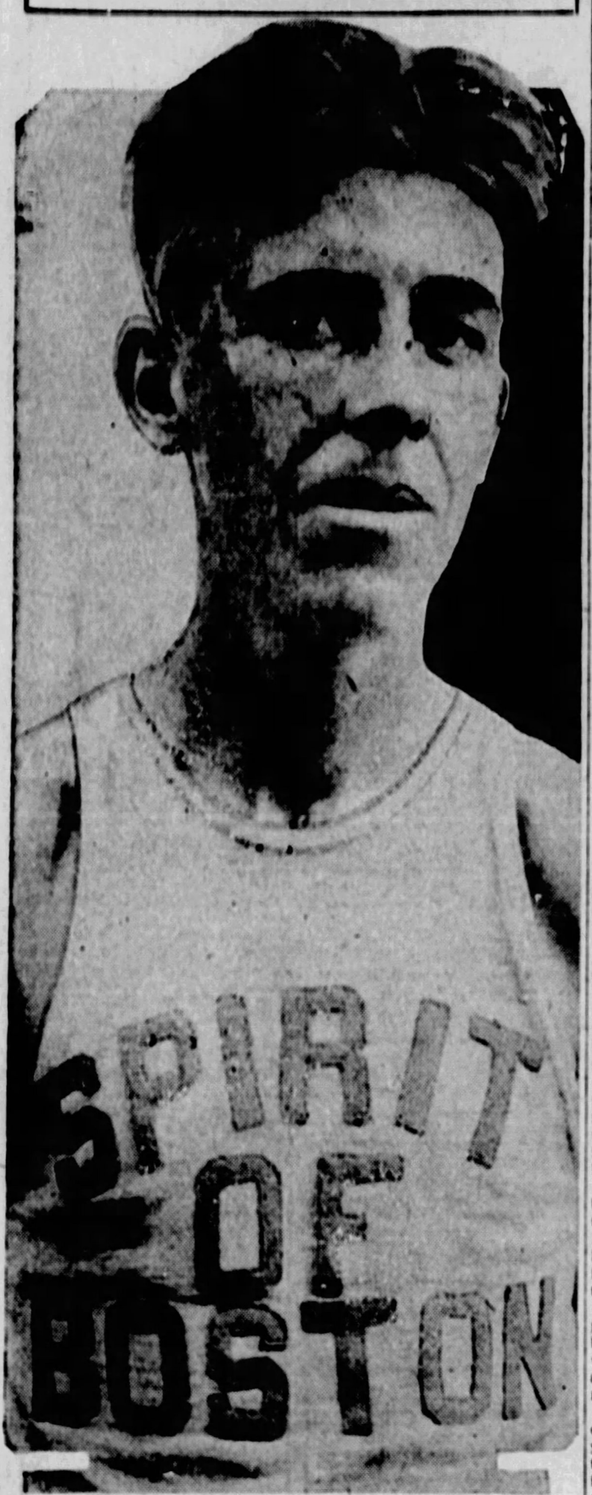
JOHNSON TO MANAGE NEWARK

CONTINUES LONG GRIND



WILLIAM H. BUSCH

Coast-to-coast runner, whose parents reside in Millvale, and who arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday afternoon and left this morning to continue his jaunt, with New York as his goal. He has been running and walking since he left Los Angeles, September 1, and hopes to finish the grind in seven more days. He has lost 20 pounds and shows signs of the severe strain in his face, but does not complain of fatigue and has no fear that he will not be able to complete his program. He runs as well at night as in the daytime and seldom strays from the road that has been mapped out for him, despite the fact that his manager, Timothy Kenney of Boston, generally flivvers on ahead of him to make arrangements for stopovers.

"BIG TRAIN" ACCEPTS BEARS' OFFER

By GEORGE BARRY,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—After 20 years under the the big top Walter Johnson goes to the minors.

The beloved Big Train, however, has been spared the usual fate of a fading veteran who slips down the baseball scale until the sandlot boys hammer him to all parts of the field, for he goes to the International League not as a hired hand but as manager of the Newark Bears next season.

A two-year contract has been signed, contingent upon the other major league clubs waiving on his services. The waiving is expected to be a mere formality, for it is probably safe to say that no major league performer ever left the big show with more sincere wishes for success than those accompanying "Old Barney." No announcement was made as to salary, but it is understood Walter's contract with Paul Block, the Newark owner, calls for $20,000 annually.

Walter said today he expected to be a playing-manager, that is he will take his turn in the box when it pleases him to do so.

"I expect to do plenty of pitching," he said, "and I expect to stay in baseball. Twenty years is a long time, the best part of a man's life, in fact, and I've given them to baseball.

"I feel I know more about baseball than about anything else. I once thought I'd quit, but I don't believe I could. It gets into your blood, this baseball, and I suppose I shall die in harness like the rest of the old timers.

"I'm looking forward to a lot of pleasure managing the Bears. Every baseball player dreams of the time when he can try out his own theories and ideas concerning the game, and now I'm to have my chance."

Walter wound up his big league career in a blaze of glory. True, this year was an unsatisfactory one for the veteran, but it was his pitching in 1924 and 1925 that brought two consecutive pennants to the Washington club. A broken leg early in the season kept the Big Smoke on the bench through most of this season's play.

"Never Again," Manager Of Runner Avers

THROUGH the SPORTLENS by HARVEY BOYLE

HARVEY BOYLE

TWO of baseball's leading figures have passed off the baseball stage in the last few days. First Ban Johnson, founder of the American League, locked his desk to return no more to the sanctum of the junior league, and now August Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati Nationals, resigns. It was a coincidence that these two colleagues should move out almost simultaneously.

It was a strange twosome that for a long time made up the majority of the governing body of baseball known as the national commission. Johnson, tall, aldermanic, bombastic, with stern visage and somber mien was paired with the small, stooped, well-barbered Herrmann, who always appeared as if he had just stepped out of a tidy bar-room in far-famed Bremen.

Where August was there sparkled and flashed good humor and a brand of Teutonic hospitality which envisioned pigs' knuckles, liverwurst, pretzels, and in those foaming days of old a large stein on the table.

At the baseball conclave the word that "Garry was holding open house," was the signal for a gathering of baseball notables from whence poured many a diamond fable, many a pleasantry. Under the Teutonic beams of Garry old enemies shook hands and often two men who had entered the portals looking daggers at each other left the hospitable Garry with arms about each other's necks while one tenor voice hit those sweet minors in Sweet Adeline while the baritone of the other blended in sweetly.

THERE was comedy in his baseball proprietorship, too, as witness his determined efforts to give Zinzinnati a pennant, only to find that the world series of Cincinnati's pennant year was one of those things—that it didn't count because some of the boys got to thinking too seriously of the wife and kiddies. But while the series of '19 brings an involuntary finger to a nose about to smell something unfavorable, nothing could mar genial Garry's great celebration of the event. He was the first magnate to introduce hospitality into the world series. That his notion was sound is shown by the fact that now every year sees one magnate trying to outstrip another in arranging a good time for the boys and their friends.

IN Cincinnati at times they disagreed with Garry's policies as a clubowner, but the good burghers there, knowing Herrmann—after of-

LONG RUN WITHOUT REWARD

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

ELSEWHERE in this great family journal you will glimpse the tired features of Bill Busch, a young athlete who arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday and left this morning on his way from Los Angeles to New York afoot. He has about eight days left to complete his long jaunt in a program of 65 days which he mapped out for himself before starting. Years ago, Edward Payson Weston, the aged pedestrian, covered the same distance in 77 days 8 hours, and the country was agog over his feat. Little attention is being paid Busch, whose father and mother and brothers and sisters reside in Millvale.

If you are interested in cross-country running and walking, go on with this story—if not, turn to the sports that do hold your attention.

TIM KENNEY of Boston, youthful and dapper manager of Busch, is a sadder but wiser promoter than he was when he stopped off in Pittsburgh with Busch on the way to the coast for the big try. Then he was blithe and enthusiastic and thinking of what a fortune awaited Busch and himself at the end of the return journey. Yesterday he was telling me, after Busch had come to town and had been tucked away for a bit of sleep at the Fort Pitt Hotel, that he was entirely disillusioned.

The trip to date has cost him about $2,000, which loss is being shared evenly by his brother in Boston. In addition, Tim bought himself a Ford with which to accompany the runner-walker, and it just about will last to carry him back home after the hard going it has had in all sorts of weather and over all sorts of roads, and, as he says, through places where there were no roads. Busch will go on and finish in good time, barring accident, but there is no pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. In fact, so far as Kenney knows now, there's nothing awaiting him there, for the reason that the stunt has failed to click, not because of any lack of effort on his part to put it over, but because the public attitude toward such feats has changed since Weston and Dan O'Leary were the rage. The warmest response he has been able to get in most towns has been something like:

"Well, what of it?"

As if men were crossing the continent in record time every day.

YOUNG KENNEY is quite as interesting as Busch. He is the son of a druggist in Boston, and his folks seemingly are well fixed. He was all set to enter a school of pharmacy just before he met up with Busch, who has been performing run-

Stagg Not To Quit Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—(A.P.)—The annual rumor that A. A. Stagg is getting ready to quit as the University of Chicago football coach has been spiked by the gray-haired mentor himself.

"There are several reasons why I will not step down," said Stagg, who now is in the midst of his thirty-sixth gridiron campaign at the midway. "The principal one is that I know of no one better qualified to coach University of Chicago teams."

Rumors of his retirement have been current for a fortnight, presumably getting their start after Fielding H. Yost, another Big Ten coach, who has seen a quarter of a century's service, announced his retirement from active direction of Michigan's football team.

Stagg expressed the opinion that his system of coaching is now used, in one form or another, by virtually every coach in the country. He made clear, however, that he did not mean the system was picked up bodily, but that many of his plays were the basis of others' coaching systems.

Stagg even traced the Rockne system at Notre Dame back to his own, at the same time explaining that Rockne had developed a system of his own. Stagg pointed out that Rockne learned the axis of his football from Jesse Harper who, in turn, was a Stagg pupil.

"Development of men," rather than encouragement of "a lust for victory," has been a cardinal Stagg principle at Chicago.

NOTES of the BOXERS

PHIL GOLDSTEIN leaves tonight for New York after a rest of several days at home following his return match with Tommy Crowley at Motor Square Garden, which resulted in a draw. The Motor Square Club already is negotiating for a third bout between the pair, and it may be staged some time next month.

Alex Simms of Canton has been selected as Harry Dudley's opponent in the main bout at McKeesport Thursday night of next week. The bout will mark Dudley's debut in this section. The Negro welterweight, who hails from California, has boxed Champion Joe Dundee, Sergt. Sammy Baker, Willie Harmon, Paul Doyle and virtually all of the other good men in his class. He is now making his home here and is managed by Billy Lewis. Jackie Murray of Philadelphia, his stablemate, will meet Tug Phillips in the eight-round semi-final.

The Crowley-Goldstein bout at Motor Square Garden last Monday night drew the largest local crowd of the season so far, the receipts being $6,119. There will be no show in the East End arena next Monday because of Halloween. The club was resume its fistic operations a week from Monday and is trying to arrange a match between Jack Zivic and Young Saylor for that occasion.

Eddie Shea of Chicago probably will be seen in action here shortly. He is one of the country's leading featherweights. Walcott Langford, Chicago Negro middleweight, also will make his local bow soon, likely against Homer Robertson.

Six local boxers will be busy in other cities tomorrow night. Cuddy DeMarco boxes Harry Kahn at Milwaukee, Rudy Ceder meets Bucky Lawless at Erie, Mike Moran engages Trip Limbaco at Lafayette, Ind., and Harry Taylor and Teddy Welch exchanges wallops at Johnstown, while Andy Tomosky faces Jimmy McDermott of Terre Haute at Gary Ind.

Joey Katkish, Lawrenceville bantamweight, meets Jimmy Connolly in one of the six-round bouts on the card at the Ridgewood Grove Club, Brooklyn, Saturday night. Marco Polo, McKees Rocks heavyweight, also is on the bill, meeting Gus Berger.

HARRIDGE MAY SUCCEED BAN

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Ban Johnson's successor as president of the American League was rumored here to be William Harridge, who acted as Ban's secretary for 15 years.

Harridge was a favorite over E. S. Barnard, president of the Cleveland Indians who was pointed to as the most likely successor to Johnson when he announced his resignation. Barnard's strength was said to be waning among baseball men today, and Johnson's former secretary is thought to be a favorite among the four directors who will meet November 2 to fill the vacancy.

Choice of Harridge would follow a precedent of the National League, established when John Heydler was elevated from his post as secretary to the presidency of the league.

ONE-ARMED STAR

ANGELO MONZO

Monzo, a caddie at the Edgewood Country Club, is an excellent golfer despite the fact that he is handicapped by having only one arm. His right arm was severed in a railroad accident two years ago, but he kept right on playing golf, a pastime to which he had been devoting most of his time since he was only eight or nine years old. Monzo participated in the first district caddie championship of Western Pennsylvania at the Longue Vue Club Monday and made a comparatively good showing. He hits an exceptionally hard and long ball from the tee, outdriving many of his fellow caddies.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

THERE is no denying that Gibby Welch, the Pitt captain and star halfback, is an extraordinary football player as he stands, but have you ever paused to consider what a wonder he would be if he could kick?

Even now Welch is a terror to all opponents, though he only runs with the ball or passes it. That makes it possible for foemen to draw in their backfield safety men, as when Welch drops back they know he is going either to run with the ball or pass it. They have to watch for only two things.

BUT if the Parkersburg star were a kicker as well, he would be a triple threat when he dropped back, and not knowing whether he intended to run, pass or kick, the opposing team would have to send its safety men back for a possible punt.

This would leave fewer men to combat a run or a pass than at present, and Gibby would have an advantage that would help him not a little in his strong bid for the individual yardage record and that would also be a great aid to the Pitt team.

ON THE whole, however, Gibby does just about all that could be desired by the followers of any team. His remarkable ability otherwise is shown by the fact that he does the wonderful things he pulls in every game without having the advantage of being a "triple threat" man.

Welches are not developed in football every season, and any team may consider itself fortunate to get one of them in a decade.

THOSE who followed football here three decades ago will look upon it as another case of a "chip off the old block" when they read that Charles Gelbert, Jr., is the star player and captain of the Lebanon Valley College team at Annville, Pa.

Remember Charles Gelbert, Sr.? Of course you do, if you were old enough to be a gridiron enthusiast in those days, when professional

Best Goal Service-- Yost

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—(Universal,) — Fielding H. Yost, University of Michigan athletic director, yesterday discussed the football player and the coach in an address here. He established the most valuable point a player and coach must aim for. His remarks were addressed to Chicago prep school coaches and team captains.

Yost believes service is the greatest goal any individual gridiron performer and coach can attain. Most of the so-called lucky men of the field have gained prominence only because of hard work and faithful service, he asserted.

"A coach," he sad, "should not be judged by the number of games he wins, but by what service he renders in his job. What does he do with his material? What does he get out of it?

"It has amused me to hear of a coach who has had a successful season, talking of his system and plays.

"I generally find occasion, without waiting very long, to walk beside him in another season and ask what's the matter with plays, what's the matter with his system.

"He will tell me that John and Jake and Bill and Henry have been lost by graduation. No system is worth more than the service given it by the coach and players who exploit it."

Ohio State Men Confer With Coach Bolen

WILMINGTON, Ohio, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Four alumni of Ohio State University, all wearers of the varsity "O" held a long conference yesterday with Coach C. W. (Shifty) Bolen of Wilmington College, it became known today.

No announcement was made as to the subject under discussion, but Bolen said:

"If I change jobs I must give six months' notice."

Following the conference Bolen was closeted with the president of the college. Bolen has developed some of the best teams in Wilmington's history since he started coaching there in 1923.

Bolen declared he was not in sympathy with criticism recently directed against Coach John W. Wilce at Ohio State, as a result of the poor showing of the Ohio football team.

"A much better way in my opinion," he said, "would be for the varsity 'O' association to co-operate with Coach Wilce in finding the trouble and helping him mend it."

BRAVES RENEW PILOT QUEST

BOSTON, Oct. 27.—(INS.)—Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, today continued his efforts to find a successor to Dave Bancroft, manager of the Tribe, according to the local ball club headquarters.

According to the gossip floating into Braves Field, Tris Speaker informed Judge Fuchs that it would require $50,000 a year for him to take the job of running the Braves. This followed the decision of Jack Dunn, so-called "miracle manager" of the Baltimore Orioles, to stay at Baltimore. Wade (Red) Killifer, according to talk at the ball club office, wants more than the $20,000 he received as manager of the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League.

TOM BROWN, FORMER NAT MANAGER, DIES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—Thomas T. (Tom) Brown, manager of the Washington baseball team three decades ago and a player of note when Anson, Jennings and McGraw were helping the game to attain its present prominence, is dead here of tuberculosis at the age of 67.

A member of the famous party of players that made the Spalding tour of the world, Brown, noted for his base stealing ability, played with several clubs in the late eighties, including Louisville, Boston and Pittsburgh. He ended his playing days as manager and center fielder of the Washington team in 1896.

Brown later became an umpire in the New York State League, where he worked for six years before coming here to engage in business.

SUFFERS BROKEN RIB

Guard of the Duquesne University football squad, who has been forced out of the game by a broken rib suffered in practice this week. The hurt comes at a bad time for the player, who had fought his way up from among the scrubs to the role of a first-string performer.

Army-Bucknell Battle Interests Local Fans

By JESS CARVER.

A FOOTBALL game, far removed in its location from this city, but one which never the less will be watched with interest by Pittsburghers, will be the Bucknell-Army struggle at the Polo Grounds. Aside from the fact that it will be one of the big games of the day, we are interested in it here because of the Bucknell coaches, Carl Snavely, former Bellefonte coach and Ulhard Hangartner, who not so very long ago played a good guard out at Pitt.

Snavely and Hangartner are enjoying a fine year at Bucknell. They beat Penn State, Villa Nova, Gettysburg and were tied by Geneva. Their goal line has only been crossed four times, twice by the fine passing attack of Villa Nova.

Hangartner is deserving of a great portion of the credit for the success of the Buffalos for the way in which he has built his line. He took four green, inexperienced sophmores, two veterans and a holdover substitute and worked them into a fast charging, stubbornly defensive, smart forward wall.

Bucknell will undoubtedly enter the clash against the Soldiers underdogs, which will be a good thing. There is every reason in the world to suspect that they may upset the dope and "take" the Cadets like they took Penn State when the Lions were counting the game in before it was played. If Bucknell beats Army, they'll be right up there among the Eastern leaders.

PITT TO REST REGS

There is little doubt but that Allegheny College will send a well drilled defensive eleven onto the Stadium gridiron Saturday against Pitt. Hopes for a victory are practically impossible as far as Allegheny is concerned, and it is very doubtful if Sutherland will use many of his regulars in the game. He'll hardly give Parkinson or Booth a call at all, permitting them to rest up for the W. & J. game a week later, THE game of the year.

Carnegie Tech's chief reason for joy at present, if any, rests in the splendid way in which Glenn Moorehead had come along in his development as the Plaid's chief ball carrier. Moorehead was just a halfback when the season opened, and didn't even get to start the first game. But he has developed very well, and displayed marked superiority over the rest of Steffen's mediocre backs, aside of course, from Harpster and Letzelter.

The Tartan task at Morgantown Saturday is a difficult one indeed. They'll be meeting a desperate Mountaineer eleven, still smarting from the Georgetown and Pitt lacings, with only the memory of the Lafayette tie to perk things up a bit. A victory is sadly needed by both elevens, so badly needed that it is difficult to determine which needs the win most.

ANSWER TO QUERY

F. H.—The Joe Dundee-Ace Hudkins bout at Los Angeles Saturday will be their first meeting. Dundee lost to Eddie Roberts by a knockout on his only other visit to the Coast and defeated Roberts in a return bout in New York.

CHILLY SAUCE
By CHILLY DOYLE

ROSS YOUNG is gone—may his tribe increase. Throughout a remarkable career, Pep Young gave professional baseball a rare flavor. The sturdy little Texan was the apple of McGraw's eye; Pep was a symbol of the McGraw style of baseball, and the tribute paid the departed athlete by his manager was just what men of the diamond would expect from an appreciative pilot.

EVERY now and then a somewhat timid secondsacker or shortstop would give protest to Young's manner of sliding while the defensive club was working on a double play. Regardless of whether he was out at second by 10 feet, Ross exercised his prerogative of sliding.

YOUNG'S brothers of the diamond often would gasp as Ross sprinted down the first base line after hitting a ground ball. In his strong stride he would throw his spikes onto the bag, but he would step himself in two or three steps instead of losing his momentum in a gentler way. The others had a fear he would break his own ankles. He carried this fearlessness into every base. Ross never tried to hurt anybody, but baseball was no mushball sport with him. "He's a give-and-take" player said a Pirate infielder, "he never squawks when he gets the worst of a collision."

AND speaking of Young's spirit, it is a fact that Pep played in a series at Forbes Field a few years ago when better caution might have kept him out of action. Ross had undergone a surgical operation and was accompanied by a medical attendant as the Giants swung westward. The battles here were significant and the nervy but ailing rightfielder went to his position. It so happened that the first game produced one of these hot smashes down the white marker. Any player of Young's spirit thinks only of one thing upon an occasion of this kind. There was a remote chance that a wild dive would hold the wallop to a single. Forgetting all about the condition of his insides, Young dove desperately and turned all sorts of gyrations in the scramble. He never tried to protect himself.

YOUNG was visited by many Pirates when the Buccos stopped for two days in San Antonio last Spring. Pep's condition had taken a turn for the better and [illegible] that he would be O. K.

[illegible] M'GRAW, by the [illegible] is quoted as saying he will not after Cuyler. Apparently he could not negotiate for him with Owner Dreyfuss. Be that as it may, John J. is none too enthusiastic regarding the Michigan ball hawk. In this connection it might be pointed out that McGraw's estimate of a player's value is often as soggy as an iceman's shirt. He has passed along a parade of boys who later came back to annoy him. When the old ball game starts, there is nobody in McGraw's class; he can see more things and make moves farther ahead than any of his rivals, and he is a natural leader who demands discipline. Yet McGraw often misses fire in judging a player's worth. This, however, is true of many managers.

PIE TRAYNOR'S quick act in leaving behind the noise and bustle for the lonesomeness of the Wisconsin woods indicates a remarkable mood in a ball-player as regards a new season almost half a year removed.

"HE'S a wonder—isn't he?" mused Johnny Gooch. "With every other player in the league glad the season is over, Pie is already laying plays for a new season. He's going up there so he

Crop of Star Backs Heavy

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—The race for all-American football honors this year, particularly among the backfield men, is under way with the ballyhoo for various candidates being sounded in all sectors of the college gridiron front.

Before the touchdown harvest is completed it promises to develop many a warm debate over sectional favorites. From a random survey of the field it seems that the number and caliber of ball-carriers is the highest it has been since 1925, when the experts staggered through the job of trying to find a backfield "big four" out of a collection that only included such satellites as Red Grange, Ernie Nevers, George Wilson, Eddie Tryon, Bennie Friedman, "Peggy" Flournoy, Jack Slagle and "Swede" Oberlander.

Another month may shift the prospect but it looms like another difficult assignment in selecting the all-American cast from an array that now numbers such stars as Bill Spears of Vanderbilt, Christy Flanagan of Notre Dame, Herb Joesting of Minnesota, a 1926 all-American; Myles Lane of Dartmouth, eastern high scorer; Ed Wittmer, Princeton's sophomore ace; Bill Ames of Washington and Jefferson; Morley Drury of Southern California; Glenn Presnell of Nebraska, "Gibby" Welch of Pittsburgh, Louis Gilbert of Michigan, Bruce Caldwell of Yale, "Tiny" Lewis of Northwestern, Frank Briante of New York University's high-scoring machine, and "Stubby" Thomason of Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado.

These stars are enjoying the spotlight while most of the linemen heave and push in the obscurity that accompanies mass action, but already such forwards as Bennie Oosterbaan, Michigan captain and end; Sprague, giant Army tackle; Langdell, Dartmouth tackle, and "Tim" Clark, giant Harvard tackle, have been conspicuous.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—With five more games to play, "Ten Yards" Briante, New York University fullback, is out to tie or surpass Red Grange's 1923 record of gaining 1,260 yards in scrimmage.

fice hours—could never hold spite very long. Every spring there would be a pennant unfurled in Cincinnati only to see it transferred to another city in the fall, but Cincinnati could never get real angry at ole Garry who was one of the boys.

THERE is hardly any of his kind left, anymore, in big league baseball. Dignity and high decorum, business looks, and airs of men of affairs now are noted on the big league rialto instead of that hi-lee—hi-lo atmosphere which Garry and others of the old guard brought with them into the national pastime.

IN A high office Garry once decreed that Sisler belonged to St. Louis and not to Pittsburgh, and for a time little Pittsburgh boys were put to bed every night with the story of Garry's great perfidy, but as time wore on, and as Garry demonstrated his hoof was not cloven, the Pittsburgh boys who got around Garry learned to know he was anything but the awful baseball monster he was pictured 'way back when Sisler was a boy.

TEAMS IN TIE

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Stockholm and Spencer and Belloni and Debaets rode into a tie early last night with McNamara and Walker, and Beckman and Winter in the six-day bicycle race at the Coliseum. They regained the needed lap during a wild "jam."

rather than college football had the stronger grip here.

For the original Charley Gelbert was playing end for the all-star D. C. & A. C. team of this city and continuing to prove himself one of the best ends in the country.

Gelbert had given considerable proof of that previously, for while playing for the University of Pennsylvania he had been selected by Walter Camp as one of the ends on the All-America team for three successive years, being named with Hinkey of Yale in 1894 and with Cabot of Harvard in 1895 and 1896. Gelbert was also chosen as one of the ends when Camp picked his All-America team of all time.

FOR several seasons Charley played a brilliant game at end on the powerful D. C. & A. C. team, of Pittsburgh, which included, among others, Dr. William Farrar, still practicing as a dentist here; Roy Jackson, Carl Williams, Floyd Rose, John Hall, Bemus and Hawley Pearce, the Indian stars; John Winstein, Bill Lawlor, Daff Gammons, Ed Young and others.

D. C. & A. C. was defeating all opponents at that time and eventually became able to triumph over W. & J. in what was then Pittsburgh's big annual Thanksgiving Day game. The local team continued to rule the roost until the all-star Homestead L. A. C. team was formed and many of the D. C. & A. C. players jumped to Homestead to join Dave Fultz, Bill Church, Artie Miller, Peter Overfield, George Brooke and other college luminaries recruited from all parts of the map.

Pittsburgh had the greatest professional team in the country in those days.

AND what his father was doing for Penn in his college years, young Charlerol is now doing for Lebanon Valley. It is said he has done more to put the Annville institution on the map than any other athlete ever developed there.

The younger Gelbert does not confine himself to football, but stars also, in baseball, and basketball. When he is graduated next June he will have 12 letters to his credit.

Gelbert says he received his first football training, as well as the talent he inherited from his father, the former Pittsburgh pro star. "Before I could carry a football, almost, my father taught me to love the game," he said. Later he taught me how to fall without getting hurt—by relaxing. He also instilled me with a keen regard for good sportsmanship."

WON'T PICK TEAM

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—(By Universal Service)—When asked if at the end of the present football season he would select a mythical all-American team, Amos Alonzo Stagg, coach of football at the University of Chicago and dean of all the coaches, replied: "I do not think I am competent, nor do I think that anyone else is competent to select such a team."

DAVE WILDER, star guard of the Doc Gordons, A. A. U. champions of last season, has received many offers to join stronger teams operating in this vicinity, but always prefers to remain with the club with which he started his basketball career.

Wilder, although still a youngster, is a veteran of the popular indoor sport and one of the outstanding amateur guards in this section of the state. His work on the floor during the last three years has been a vital factor in the success attained by the Gordons.

The Gordon star is reported to be in excellent shape and is looking forward to another successful campaign on the floor this winter.

PADGLECK'S Battle-Axe Club of Moon Run has organized a strong first-class independent team and will make an effor to enter one of the professional circuits operating hereabouts this winter, according to Joe Padgleck, sponsor of the quintet.

The roster of the club includes Joe Just, former Crafton High star; Frank Lloyd, Frank and Joe Trobugh, Stewart Abenour and Dick and James Darnley. All home games will be played on the Moon Run High School floor.

IF THE management of the Sumer Somerman Club succeeds in obobtaining a first-class floor on which to stage its home attractions, the P. & O. Leaguers will be back in basketball, otherwise the quintet will remain inactive, according to reports prevalent in local cage circles.

While the Somermans have lost considerable material as a result of several regulars entering college, there are enough candidates on hand to fill the vacancies in the lineup.

Jack O'Brien Tells President to Start Boxing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(Universal)—Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, once great master of the "manly art," who dodged as many gloves as were ever thrown at any man, yesterday advised President Coolidge to go in for boxing a bit.

"Of course you can't say much to the President of the United States," said the old boxer, "but while the President looks fit I know that a man that sits at a desk so long is apt to take on a 'tummy' and I told him there was no better exercise in the world than boxing."

NEW GRID POLICY IS NOT FAVORED

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP.)—The policy of non-scouting, an experiment in football among a number of leading colleges in the East, may be less in vogue when another gridiron campaign rolls around, if present indications are a criterion.

While it has been pronounced a "success" by several institutions, among which Yale is a leader, others believe that instead of eliminating so-called "evils," it may lead to subterfuges less desirable than an open-and-above-board policy of scouting.

Cornell, for instance, has declined to enter into any non-scouting agreements this season and is definitely opposed to such a policy. Harvard, while trying it out, is understood to oppose renewing any non-scouting agreements next year, with the possible exception of that with Yale.

BUSCH

ning, walking and swimming didos of endurance for some time. A policeman who directs traffic in front of the drug store owned by the elder Kenney became a great admirer of Busch and was ever telling young Kenney about him and painting roseate pictures of the lad's future if only some live young whippersnapper would take him up and stake him for his cross-country run. Kenney had saved about $1,100 and was planning to take in the American Legion convention in Paris, but, after thinking it over, figured he might as well try backing Busch and take the chance of cleaning up in the end. He asked his dad about it and the latter told him it was a crazy idea, but to go ahead if he wanted to do it, and his brother said he'd assume half the risk.

"You'll at least see the country," the brother advised.

"Well, I've seen the country all right," Kenney told me, "but the next time I start out on such a mission, I'll do it without being hampered by all the work that managing a long-distance runner involves."

KENNEY soon got his fill of the day-and-night trekking, although he did his behind the steering wheel of the small car. He says he became so disgusted the fourth day out of Los Angeles that he wanted to chuck it, but Busch was determined to go on, and he wouldn't leave him flat. They ran into a lot of rainy weather and at one stage he had to buy a slicker for the runner and the latter had to wade and swim swollen streams and became chilled and was threatened with pneumonia. When they crossed the desert lands, they decided to travel at night, but found they couldn't sleep in the day time because of the heat, and switched, and Busch became so badly burned from the sun that blisters covered his face and body. His feet were so badly swollen and blistered that every step contained untold agony. Many times the runner was lost, although his course was charted daily, and he often had to retrace his steps for miles to get on the right road.

Kenney would let Busch start out early in the morning and follow later in the day, catching up with him along about noon, in time for luncheon, if he could find him, and, if not, he would spend hours in searching. Then he would stay with him for a little while and then go on to the next big town to prepare a place for the night and make arrangements with the newspapers to report the runner's progress.

Out in Illinois, Busch was struck by an automobile and was knocked unconscious, but as soon as he recovered he continued to run, refusing to have a doctor attend him for his injuries. Kenney left him west of Zanesville, O., Monday night and came into Pittsburgh. Busch lost the little money he carried with him and had to telephone from a small town for his manager to wire money to him at Wheeling so he could eat. And the only wearing apparel he had consisted of his running pants, sweat shirt and shoes and socks. He left Wheeling late Tuesday and ran throughout the night and morning, arriving in Pittsburgh early yesterday afternoon. After washing up at the hotel, he accompanied his father to the family home and then went back to the hotel to get some sleep. And this morning he was off again, headed East.

"SAY, nobody in this world has any idea of how tough that kid is," Kenney said. "He's the most determined young fellow I ever saw. Nothing daunts him. Anybody else would have quit days ago. Here he's been going since September 1, and when he hit the city limits of Pittsburgh he tried to beat his motorcycle escort downtown. I really believe he could run on indefinitely. And all for what? For a little glory and a record. Unless we get a vaudeville contract or something like that out of it, our efforts all will have been in vain. The public probably thinks we're a couple of 'nuts' and I'm just about willing to admit I am for ever thinking we could get anywhere with the feat. So far as I am concerned, you can put me down as one of those 'never again' guys.

"But, say," a little proudly, "that fellow Busch is not licked. Not yet. And if he should decide to enter C. C. Pyle's cross-country run next spring, I'll bet every dollar I can get my hands on that he'll win it. This has been a great experience for him, and I don't think any other man can stand the gaff and make the time he's making. He's in a class by himself, even if the public and the newspapers in most cities do eye us askance when we tell them about it and ask by innuendo if not in so many words: "Well, what of it?"

Busch was furnished with a motorcycle escort both on his arrival and departure by Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh, and his stay in Pittsburgh at least was pleasant.

CALL CHAMP "SISSY"

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(By Unversal Service.)—It was warm yesterday afternoon, so when Gene Tunney went uptown to see his mother he rode in an open car, his hat off. Two young girls on bicycles were passed. One glanced at the handsome young man with somewhat curly locks and called out: "sissy!" The heavyweight champion tells the story himself.

can be in good shape, and he'll have a lot of staying qualities in the old home stretch."

THE staying qualities of the Somerville greyhound stood out radiantly in the last few weeks of the pennant drive. When others were flopping or cracking in the final game in Cincy, Traynor stepped up with three on and two out and drove over a pair of runs that stood out big at the finish of the game that won the pennant.

TRAYNOR weighed in at the finish of the world series, the scale showing he had dropped 20 pounds during the season. Twenty pounds to a fellow who lives the life of Reilly in the winter is nothing exceptional, but Traynor, an abstainer from the common habits, is seldom out of kilter for the keenest kind of competition; he could jump into his ball togs and play championship games at the end of three days. Hence, a loss of 20 pounds to an athlete of this type is quite a drop—and Pie wants to get most of it back.

BOARD REJECTS PARDON PLEA OF KARTUB

HARRISBURG, Oct. 27—Testimony of medical experts was rejected by the State Board of Pardons today when former Public Service Commissioner Lex N. Mitchell, Pittsburgh, presented a plea of pardon of Dr. Nathan C. Kartub, of Butler county. The history of the case shows that Dr. Kartub was an interested beneficiary of life insurance policies on Joe Zofag who died suddenly after being under Kartub's [illegible] Commonwealth, in investigation of the case, claimed to have evidence that Zofag was [illegible] and also offered evidence [illegible] patients of Kartub having died mysteriously with traces of poison being found. Kartub changed his plea to guilty of murder when the trial was about to start, and was sentenced in 1917 to serve 19 to 20 years. Mr. Mitchell offered letters from several noted physicians who said medical testimony at the trial did not indicate enough poison to cause death.

"I won't take the testimony of experts five years afterwards about what happened when the man who was a qualified physician himself goes into court and pleads guilty to being responsible for the death," said Lieutenant Governor Arthur H. James vehemently.

"But if the commonwealth had evidence, as it claimed, to convict in three deaths, why would it accept a second degree murder plea?" countered Mitchell.

"Because six sworn witnesses at the preliminary hearing had given the defense an inkling of the damaging evidence against Kartub and Kartub changed his plea, because he knew he had no chance of acquittal," replied former Deputy Attorney General J. O. Campbell, a former district attorney of Butler county, who opposed the pardon.

HOLD RITES FOR J. M. CAMP

With many persons prominent in the steel industry in attendance, funeral services were held this afternoon for J. M. Camp of 1626 Wightman street, well-known chemist, who died at his home yesterday after an illness of only four days. Burial was in Homewood Cemetery.

Mr. Camp was director of the bureau of instruction of the Carnegie Steel Company and chairman of the chemists' committee of the United States Steel Corporation. He was a member of the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania, the American Society of Steel Treaters, the American Chemical Society, the American Iron and Steel Institute, and the British Iron and Steel Institute.

He was born in Allegheny November 12, 1883. In 1886 he graduated from the Western University of Pennsylvania. As a young man he entered the employ of the Carnegie Steel Company as a chemist, serving for more than 25 years at the Duquesne works. In 1911 he moved to the company's downtown office.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Belle Wightman Camp; a brother, William H. Camp, and a sister, Miss Agnes B. Camp.

Dragon

VANISHES IN PROBE

James Esdale, of Birmingham, Ala., attorney and grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Alabama, has left the state, it became known recently, when he failed to appear before the grand jury investigating floggings. Esdale has been on the witness stand several times in the past to explain the activities of the hooded order in the lashings.

COURT HEARS TEST SUIT OF MINERS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27.—"Hypercritical technicalities" were the words with which the appeals of John Vegeo and Smaile Chatak, striking miners discharged by the Inland Collieries Company and the Consumers Mining Company, were characterized by Attorneys A. Leo Weil and R. G. Bostwick before the Superior Court here yesterday when the court heard argument on the appeals from the ejectment proceedings brought by the companies to evict the miners from company-owned houses.

There are a large number of similar appeals pending against each of these companies, but a stipulation was filed by counsel agreeing that they all involve the same questions of law and that they shall all be governed by the Superior Court's decision in these two test cases.

PITTSBURGHER FOR DEFENSE

Attorney O. K. Eaton of Pittsburgh appeared for the miners, having hurried from Harrisburg, where he was to appear before the Board of Pardons on behalf of John A. Bell, but Attorney General Baldridge was prevented from appearing at the meeting of the pardon board owing to an engagement in Philadelphia. Upon learning this, Attorney Eaton boarded the first train for this city to present his arguments in the miners' case before the Superior Court.

The provisions of the leases under authority of which the mining companies brought the ejectment proceedings against their discharged employes are as follows:

"If possession shall not be surrendered by the lessee in any case in which the lessor is entitled to it, or if the rent, or any part thereof, is not paid when due, the lessor may at any time commence an action of ejectment for the premises; and any attorney of the court in which such action is commenced may appear for the lessee, and for any person or persons in possession under him, accept service of the writ, and forthwith confess judgment in such action against the lessee."

In these cases the writ of possession was issued simultaneously with the bringing of the actions in ejectment, the companies relying on the authority in the lease to enter judgment by confession against the tenants.

There were only three questions submitted on the appeals for the Superior Court to determine, all extremely technical, the principal one being:

"Where the terms of the lease require the commencement of an action in ejectment, and the issuance of a writ, may judgment be confessed prior to the return day of the writ where such writ is actually issued, and may a writ to take possession issue on such judgment prior to said return."

The Superior Court reserved its decision.

HALT FERRIES AT PARNASSUS

PARNASSUS, Pa., Oct. 27.—Operation of two ferries between Parnassus and West Kensington, pending completion of a new bridge, was halted by United States steamboat inspectors until the boats could be equipped with a life preserver for each passenger. As a result hundreds of persons employed in industrial plants on both sides of the Allegheny River had to motor by way of the Hulton bridge, six miles below here, or walk to the Valley Camp ferry, two miles above.

SAY SENTENCE EXCESSIVE: ASK PRISONER'S RELEASE

Attorney Blanche B. Levy has begun habeas corpus proceedings to obtain the release of James Smith from the Allegheny county workhouse, sent there for six months, by Magistrate John J. Verona on a suspicious person charge. Smith has already served 90 days and the limit for the offense is 60 days.

KIN DENIED BURIAL OF VETERAN

WOMAN'S CLAIM FOR FUNERAL UPHELD

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 27.—Judge Irwin Cummins in Common Pleas Court today refused the request of the brothers and sisters of Chester Korski, 32, war veteran, that they, and not Miss Frances Rocowski, his business partner, be allowed to bury him.

The funeral was halted yesterday in Miss Rocowski's home on an injunction obtained by the relatives. At the hearing today Miss Rocowski produced a letter left by Korski in which he directed that she have charge of the funeral. It will proceed tomorrow, Miss Rocowski said.

The war vet, who died October 21, in a veterans' hospital at Oteen, N. C., was given a partnership in her restaurant by Miss Rocowski, it was said, and while he was treated for gas in the hospital his estate accumulated.

There is considerable speculation as to whom the veteran has left his worldly goods, said to be valued at $20,000 or more.

OLD HURT KILLS GRID PLAYER

An injury suffered two years ago in a football game last night caused the death of Charles J. Tierney at his home, 411 Ninth avenue, Munhall. He would have been 19 years old tomorrow.

Fullback on the Munhall High football team, Tierney was kicked on the head in a game with Irwin High. The wound gave little trouble at the time, but after he had graduated from high school and entered University of Pittsburgh, a tumor developed and he was forced to leave school. Three operations in local hospitals and a like number in other institutions failed to stay the progress of the malady.

AUTO HURTLES BANK IN FOG

A woman suffered lacerations and three persons, all of Tarentum, were shaken up when their automobile dropped over a 12-foot embankment in the fog on the Pittsburgh road near Cheswick station today. Mrs. Arthur Rehner was the only one hurt. Her husband, Mrs. Pearl Rehner and a Mrs. Killian escaped injuries.

AUTO DRIVER ACQUITTED

Stewart A. Thomas of 1471 Kendall avenue, Bellevue, was acquitted of involuntary manslaughter late yesterday in Criminal Court in a verdict directed by Judge Harry H. Rowand on motion of Attorney Ralph Smith, defendant's counsel. The evidence presented showed that Mrs. Kate Mitchell, aged 75, was fatally injured in Fifth avenue near Market street the morning of March 12, last, when she dashed in front of a street car and was struck by an automobile driven by Thomas alongside the car, which prevented his seeing the aged woman. Thomas was exonerated by a coroner's jury and was tried yesterday on a charge subsequently lodged by H. C. Mitchell, justice of the peace of Midland and son of the victim.

Suwanee River, Famed in Song, Drying Up

By Universal Service.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 27.—"Way down upon where the Suwanee Ribber used to be" might well be the title of a revised version of the famous song today.

For the Suwanee River almost isn't any more, especially in the upper reaches, where pools of water in the deeper parts attest that there used to be a river there.

The river bed stretches for miles near White Springs, Ga., its white sand gleaming, but with no sign of a stream.

The Alapaha, a smaller river, also in this vicinity, has gone completely dry in some places, due to a subterranean passage through which it is coursing.

The cause of the drying up of the Suwanee has not yet been explained.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

"Electricity brings increased comfort"

Says Herbert Hoover, Secretary U. S. Department of Commerce

*"We are in the midst of a great transformation in the development of electric power—it is reducing the burden of human toil; it is increasing productivity; it is bringing increased comfort to our people."

WHAT each workman in the United States can do with his hands is multiplied ten times by the electric power he uses. Sixty-eight million people are also using labor-saving electrical devices in their homes.

Electrical service has its greatest value because it is delivered at the time and place where it is needed. That is what electrical service means, and the foresight and enterprise of the country's light and power companies have helped make it possible.

Because power companies built power plants and transmission lines that would take care of the growing demand for service many years in advance, every new electrical invention has found an abundance of power ready to serve it. Now even the small communities get electrical service through interconnected power systems.

Enthusiastic public acceptance has done much to help build this electrical service. Three million investors own the securities of electric power companies and the whole public has benefited from rate reductions made possible through increased use of labor saving devices.

To insure the complete fulfillment of the promise of comfort and happiness which electricity offers, the American principle of individual initiative must be maintained.

Texas Wins Confidence In Financial World

By B. C. FORBES

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 27.

VERILY, the brotherhood of man is nearer and nearer.

That was the thought uppermost in my mind as I sat next to this state's youthful governor, Dan Moody, at a private luncheon attended by half a dozen financial and business leaders, local and non-local, when he said to me very earnestly:

"Texas today stands for the rights of capital. Our people proved that recently when they rose up indignantly against a proposed attempt to repudiate road bonds which were found to have been issued not strictly in accordance with technical legal requirements. Texas passed a law protecting the rights of these investors.

"This state welcomes capital to share in its opportunities."

THE visiting bankers are impressed by Dan Moody's manifest sincerity. You will see northern capital coming into Texas more freely and confidently as a result of this week's annual convention of the American Bankers' Association, a body representing 55 billions of banking resources and embracing a membership of 21,000.

The truth is that years ago outside capital was afraid to venture into Texas. It had suffered blows that hurt. Texas was looked upon as semi-communistic, as hostile to "foreign" corporations.

ALL that is now changed. Of late, Texas has been going ahead as never before—going ahead as a state of diversified agriculture, as an industrial state, as a financial state. Why, its bank deposits today exceed $700,000,000, contrasted with $54,000,000 in 1904. Its manufactured products, including oil, will this year reach $1,250,000,000. Its agricultural products will exceed a billion, declares Nathan Adams, whose American Exchange-National Bank carries one-third of all the deposits in Dallas.

READ this: M. H. Gossett, president of the state's Federal Land Bank, declares that the amount of overdue interest on the $150,000,000 loans made to Texas farmers is less than $700—seven hundred dollars.

It is astonishing that Mr. Adams should make the statement "conditions were never better in Texas—largely because more business judgment was injected into farming this year than ever before."

ONE giant attracting much attention is A. G. Giannini, founder and upbuilder of the Bank of Italy, Cal., which will end this year with more capital than any other bank in the world. A share worth $100 eight years ago is now worth $800. The aggregate resources of the bank and its intertwined institutions, with their 287 offices and branches, well exceed a billion.

How has he done it? Said Mr. Giannini:

"Too many bankers work for themselves as well as for their banks—and sometimes they themselves get the better of it. Also, they have all sorts of irons in the fire. I have only worked for the Bank of Italy. I'm not rich and never want to be. But I have done something to help to make our stockholders rich—we have 75,000 of them and over a million depositors.

"I have managed to do still more for our people in the bank. They get 40 per cent of all profits, after dividends are paid. My only fear is that many of them will become so well off that they may not want to keep on working hard. We have the most loyal lot of workers in the world. That counts for an awful lot."

SOME people have expressed apprehension lest Giannini corral control of vast systems of chain banks throughout the United states. Questioned, he said emphatically:

"I don't believe in chain banking. It leaves too much room for doing funny things—for slick practices which it would be mighty hard for examiners to detect. What I believe in is in branch banking. And you are going to see branch banking become as prevalent as 5 and 10-cent stores.

"This large scale way of doing business gives young men great opportunities. They can invest in their company's own stock on favorable terms, share in the profits and develop the best that's in them under the incentive of the competition of fellow-workers anxious to rise to the top. That's better than owning a corner grocery store or other one-man business that stays small."

THE convention proceedings are unexciting. Senator Glass could not come. Senator Caraway's attempt to force upon the convention himself and fellow agitators for governmental aid to farmers was a storm in a teacup. With farm conditions so pronouncedly improved, Haugen-McNaryism is regarded by bankers, sticklers for sound economics, as doomed.

BUGS BAER Says

MAYOR THOMPSON of Chicago is anxious to go down in syncopated history as the one-man war.

The mayor lives on the baggy end of Lake Michigan and whiles away his time singing a hymn of hate to waltz tempo.

Tommy's dirge of venom is directed against King George the Five of England whose son is the Poodles Henneford of Royalty.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

It seems that Tommy discovered that Chicago's school books were all written in English, a language much dreaded in Democratic conventions.

The mayor regards this as subtle propaganda destined to nibble at the foundations of a noble old town, whose charter was a Beaver skin and whose Nero was a mooley cow.

Although a national war without government support soon becomes a municipal solo, the mayor is mobilizing his canoes and Boy Scouts.

England is 4,000 miles away but Tommy refuses to allow distance to dim his ardor.

The war against English espionage in kindergarten books will continue until the last copy is dog-eared and the H is nailed securely in the final alphabet.

The American flag and the Chicago elevated loop are two noble institutions which no power on earth can pull down.

When Chicago fights London it would be a good idea if the Red Cross makes its headquarters in Palm Beach or Los Angeles.

This will be the third war between America and England. So even if the mayor is defeated we still have two legs on the cup.

However, if Tommy wants to ride tandem with Paul Revere, flavor Lake Michigan with tea leaves and chills his hot dogs with Washington at Valley Forge, we must allow him sufficient leeway to amuse the children of Chicago.

But, when he poses as a Minute Man he is only 151 years late.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE d'ALROY

ON "DISHING UP THE OBVIOUS"

MARRIAGE, like a POTATO,
Seems to be a NICE,
Homely, SUBSTANTIAL
AFFAIR. A little
STODGY in its WAY,
And UNQUESTIONABLY
Good for the RACE.
NEW potatoes and NEW MARRIAGES undoubtedly Possess a PIQUANT
FLAVOR—but What TIME does to
MANY of them is A CRIME.
Of course, it is MOSTLY

INDIFFERENCE.
Potatoes are rather ORDINARY things,
And the BEST of us
Are only HUMAN.
THEREFORE it is MANIPULATION that COUNTS. And as the years
Go by, whether MARRIED
People look like FRENCH
FRIED, Saute, MASHED,
Baked or plain HARD-
BOILED POTATOES,
Depends on HOW they dish
Up the OBVIOUS.

Put Permanent Bar to Any Chance of a Dictatorship

The people of this country think that they are in some way protected against the peril of an unscrupulous politician in the President's office building up a powerful political machine and remaining in power for a third term, perhaps indefinitely.

The imaginary protection of the people lies simply in a very wise precedent established by Washington and Jefferson and rigorously pursued by the other popular Presidents in our earlier national life: Monroe, Madison and Jackson.

Any one of these men could have had a third term and probably a fourth and fifth and tenth term, if he wanted it. The national adoration of Jackson was so great that he could have gone on being President until his death in spite of the custom that had been established by Washington, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe.

The third-term precedent is based upon nothing but our good fortune that our immensely popular early Presidents were endowed with the highest qualities of unselfish patriotism, willing to relinquish their power. Who can be sure that our good fortune in this respect will continue?

It is not conclusive to argue that the two greatest Republicans of modern times, Grant and Roosevelt, tried for a third term and failed. Grant was refused renomination by the Republican National Convention in 1880, after he had been four years out of office and hence deprived of his political machine. A further reason for the refusal was that Grant near the end of his second term had said that he would not be a candidate for renomination.

Just so Roosevelt's own words were used against him when he sought a third term in 1912. He was President from 1900 to 1908 and there is every reason to believe that he could have then gone on being President another four years in spite of his statement, made after his election in 1904, that he considered he was entering upon a second term and under no condition would he accept a third. Nevertheless, he would have been nominated and elected by the Republicans in 1912 if the bosses had not been in control of the convention. And if Roosevelt had been alive in 1920, no other name would have been presented to the Republican convention.

We should be guaranteed against the third-term peril not by mere precedent, which may be broken, but by a constitutional provision that cannot be broken. There should be a permanent bar to the temptation of personal ambition and corrupt interests to combine to create and control a political organization intent upon permanent domination of the nation's life.

President Coolidge's wise determination not to accept another term has focussed the public mind upon the third-term question. It should be settled now once for all, and the settlement embodied in an amendment to the Constitution.

Cheer Leading Worth While

People who resent the "higher education" in all its ways and works—there are a good many left, even in this broad-minded ...e—will snort at a picture of school cheer-leaders doing their ... football game.

...e fathers, counting the sacrifices necessary to keep sons ...g knowledge, may wonder what such antics have to do wit... ...eparation for the well-known battle of life.

Well, they have a lot to do with it.

These boys are getting strenuous exercise, for one thing: the players out on the field will not be any more tired when the last whistle blows. And association with athletes stirs an interest in keeping physically fit. If a youngster learns nothing more from school or college than the vital importance of health, the money spent is bountifully worth while.

Another thing, these human jumping jacks are satisfying the natural human urge to show off. When that desire is suppressed, it often breaks out in curious and not always harmless manifestations.

Count as further gain the lads' training in what it means to go strongly along with the crowd. "School spirit" is the name—it's really group, or herd, spirit. Man cannot live for himself alone. Understanding how to be part of the social herd is essential to pleasant and successful existence.

Remember, further, these boys are cheer leaders. In what may seem, perhaps, a trivial fashion, they are nevertheless leading their fellows—discovering and developing the qualities of enthusiasm, sympathy, magnetism that put men out in front for others to follow.

Those are a few of the things boys may get out of being cheer leaders. All under the head of education—for the part of education that comes from books isn't the half of it.

Million Protestants Wanted

Make It Interesting, and They'll Come.

The Men's Church League starts a campaign "to bring 1,000,000 new members into the Protestant churches."

You can bring 1,000,000 or 10,000,000 people into anything that INTERESTS them. The question is how to make the church INTERESTING in these days of competition by moving pictures, radio, baseball, prize fighting, horse racing, cabaret dancing, etc.

Spurgeon, Beecher, Talmage, Billy Sunday never had trouble getting crowds. The trouble was to find room to put the crowd.

Human beings do not change; interest them and they will come. But competition grows stronger. If you give a monkey milk he is satisfied. Give him beer and he won't drink milk. Give him wine and he won't drink beer. Give him brandy and he won't drink wine; he wants brandy.

Religion must be made exciting to "draw" in this generation.

Pershing Scores Again

General John J. Pershing, with a display of his usual good sense, has spoken right out in meeting to the milk-fed pacifists who believe that our wealth will protect us from invasion, the most inane philosophy that ever gripped any considerable number of people. He says:

"National defense is the only sure means of preserving honorable peace. If our rights and our wealth are not worth protecting, they are not worth having. Riches are no bar to invasion. They only tempt invaders."

When you want to know of peace, ask a man who knows war. Pershing is a man of few words, but every word is gospel.

Now He Knows

Gov. Austin Peay, of Tennessee, recently died, was an ardent supporter of a law that forbade the teaching of the doctrine of evolution in Tennessee's educational institutions.

He dwells now undoubtedly where he realizes that there is no real conflict between science and theology. What we mistake for such a conflict is simply human foolishness.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Drawing in School

IT IS an admirable plan that has been adopted in the Mexican public schools of permitting and encouraging the children to draw illustrations of the subjects of their study, the drawing being done without special instruction, each child using his or her own imagination to conceive and execute the picture. The teacher simply watches the work and encourages any exhibition of individual talent.

It is a bold breaking away from conventional methods, and the results are reported to the Ministry of Public Education as being excellent. They are noted in the homes of the pupils, where the children spontaneously design and decorate toys and other articles. The teachers observe that this freedom of the imagination reacts upon the scholarship of the pupils, serving to fix their attention more closely upon their school work, and so to impress their lessons more deeply in their minds.

This is a truly practical step in psychology, worth more than a thousand of the usual "laboratory" experiments. The reason for taking it is evident to any one who recalls his own schooldays. How many can remember making crude pictures on the margins and fly leaves of their school books, and being rebuked, or even punished, for "desecration" and "idleness" by teachers who had no perception of the fact that the pupil was giving expression to ideas awakened by his studies, and thus, in a stumbling way, was advancing his own education.

No spontaneous or original exercise of the mind should be considered alien in a schoolroom. That is the place of all places where invention should be free. One of the first manifestations of the awakening of intellectual curiosity is the tendency to draw pictures. A proof is seen on the pictured walls of prehistoric caverns, the earliest homes of men, where humanity taught itself its first lessons and began its education. Almost every child experiences this desire as soon as his or her mind begins to develop. But how often is it encouraged, either at home or in school?

The consequence is that most of us never learn to draw, though, as this Mexican experiment proves, such learning requires no effort or even any teaching if it is allowed to evolve freely. The children become their own critics. Excellence is quickly recognized by them, and the spirit of emulation develops the powers of the more backward.

How often a man or woman exclaims regretfully, "Oh, if I could only draw what I see! But I am perfectly powerless to produce the least resemblance."

There might be no occasion for such regret if drawing, by the Mexican plan, were practiced in all our public schools. It is the spontaneous element that gives its power to this method. Only exceptional pupils, endowed with artistic talent, are attracted by the paraphernalia of the regular drawing teacher, but all are immediately interested when told that they are at liberty—under proper supervision, of course—to make the best pictures they can relating to the subjects of their study, and to do it in their own way. Even for the specially gifted this method of beginning is the best, just as the best way to learn a foreign language is to begin by listening to it and trying to speak it by imitation. The rules of drawing, like grammar, come properly after the mind and the hand have learned by their own spontaneous efforts to make the first motions, and to grasp the object.

Let the children illustrate their own books—their minds will develop the faster for that.

Vanishing Days

DAYS are due to vanish and only night remain. English scientists, working hard on the problem, have found that a day on earth becomes one-thousandth of a second shorter every hundred years. At this rate eternal night will arrive in eight billion years.

In the face of this startling discovery the public will remain calm, but wise men will work and save candles for the night that is coming.

If feminine styles keep on their present trend, constant darkness may be absolutely essential by that time.

Do Your Share

HAVE you ever done more than your absolute duty?

It's easy to reply that you have paid your debts and that you have never cheated anyone, you've never been in jail and you have done your part toward your family.

But that is not much, is it?

The law has power to require as much of you.

If this is the sum total of your good deeds you have not added to world betterment, nor to its advancement and progress.

What have you done that would elevate you to a position out of the ordinary run of humanity?

If you have ability and power to do more than the one who is not so well prepared, and you have not done it, you are a failure, aren't you?

Too easily satisfied with yourself and your accomplishments, you take the line of comparative ease and comfort and let it go at that.

So you are really just ordinary—a rather common person.

Tales That Are Told

Waited in Vain

THE village hall was packed out. Mr. Scamper, the literary man, was giving a lecture on Burns.

He began by quoting "The Cotter's Saturday Night," and was proceeding to "Tam o' Shanter" when a man shouted:

"When are you going to give us a few hints?"

"Hints?" said the literary lecturer.

"Yes, hints!" shrieked the interrupter. "I came in because you are supposed to know all about burns, and you stand there spouting poetry, while my wife, who upset a kettle of water on her foot, is wondering whether she should rub it with oil or not."

Soon Remedied

BROWN had arrived at the seaside, but could not find apartments. Everywhere he heard the same cry: "Full up!"

At last one woman said she had got one part of her house unoccupied, she added, "I'm afraid it wouldn't suit you."

However, Brown was desperate.

"Anything will do," he said.

So she proceeded to show it him.

"There," she said, opening a door.

Brown gasped.

"But," he exclaimed, "I ——"

"Oh," interrupted the woman, "that will be all right. If you decide to accept it we sha'n't be long shifting the coal."

Ye Towne Gossip

by K. C. B.

IT WAS only a matter
OF A two-bit piece
AND HOW I happened
TO THINK of it
AS A likely subject
FOR TODAY'S discourse
WAS THAT a friend
WHO WAS with me
WANTED TO know
WHY I parked my car
AT A parking place
THREE BLOCKS away
FROM WHERE it was
WE WERE going to lunch
INSTEAD OF a place
TWO BLOCKS away
AND JUST for a moment
I DIDN'T know
AND THEN I recalled
AND TOLD to him
HOW SOME weeks ago
I SOUGHT a place
TO PARK my car
ALONG THE curb
WHILE I'D hurry in
AND BUY some stamps
AND HURRY out
AND THERE was no place
BUT RIGHT next door
WAS THE parking place
WE'RE DISCUSSING now
AND I drove in there
AND PAID my quarter
AND GOT my check
AND SAID to the man
A NICE young man
THAT IT would be
A WASTE of time
TO MOVE my car
TO A vacant place
IN THE line of cars
FOR I would be back
IN A moment or two
AND HE left it there
AND IN two minutes
I WAS back again
AND GAVE my check
TO THE nice young man
WHO THEN returned
MY QUARTER to me
AND SAID to me
"WE'LL BE glad to have you
"COME BACK again
"BUT IT wouldn't be fair
"TO MAKE a charge
"FOR SO short a time."
AND THAT was all
AND I drove away
AND A dozen times since
I HAVE gone back
WHEN NEARER places
WOULD HAVE better served
AND THE two-bit piece
GIVEN BACK to me
HAS GONE back to him
A DOZEN times
I THANK you

Fat a Difficult Foe

THERE is a slight scandal in the Coolidge administration and gossip is rampant. The horrid fact is that the President is getting fat. While this has happened to other Presidents, it happened long ago when getting fat was not a disgrace.

The President's iron horse, Electra, has been discarded as an exerciser and a vibrating electric belt substituted and the situation can no longer escape public attention.

Making the old waist line behave is a problem that has baffled some of the best minds in history. The sympathy of the public is with the President in this hour of trial.

But the President is doing his best and putting up a good fight and if the growing equator wins, as it usually does, he will go down before it with colors flying.

New York Day by Day

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Society has a dozen or so men who are known as "bleachers," and where the name comes from no one seems to know. A "bleacher" is an easy-going fellow with plenty of money, who acts as a sort of a buffer between a lady and a scandal.

While a divorce is on the fire he will appear with her in public. He is the pal sort, generally friendly with her husband and one whose presence never causes lifting of eyelids. He is immune from gossip even if he appears in a cafe with the most talked-about show girl in town.

The "bleacher" is an adroit conversationalist. He can keep people amused. He is the sort whose Oxford tie strings never show, and every hair in his head is always in perfect place. He does not, however, fit the popular idea of a fop.

He goes in for the country-gentleman stuff, riding to hounds and such. He plays tennis and swims well and has a shooting box in the Maine woods. His courtliness is of another and less hurried generation. He will even sit the poodle and go shopping to match ribbons.

He can order a divine dinner from potage to pecans and knows vintage wines by their boquet. As a rule he is a well preserved man of about 50. In no way is he looked upon as a polite moocher or gigolo. He has money to entertain extravagantly and does.

In the winter he is found on the Palm Beach stands and may lunch at Whitehall with the chastest of Dianas and squire a hotsy-totsy queen to Bradley's at night and bat her for the highest stakes. Women gravitate to him naturally although he is in no sense regarded as a lady-killer. He's comfortable.

Indeed, the "bleacher" is just one of those incongruous humans so peculiar to New York. Some say his appelation comes from the idea of sitting in the social bleachers—viewing activities with high enthusiasm but never getting close enough to be scorched.

Fun is fun, but a speakeasy in 46th street is tired of foolishness. A wall sign reads: "Revenue agents are welcome, but they must behave."

Broccoli is a vegetable which is now listed on the menu of every smart cafe in town. It is cooked in as many ways as potatoes. It is raised extensively on Long Island and in Florida and California.

The most consistent patrons of the gallery tiers at the Metropolitan opera are Italian barbers and Greek shoe shiners. At the home of a Metropolitan star recently two gentlemen, a little ill at ease in bad fitting suits, entertained especially selected guests—one at the piano and another with vocal selections. The next day a guest was sitting in her bedroom in the East Fifties watching building operations across the street. She saw something familiar about two hod carriers and finally they gazed at her and smiled in recognition. They were the entertainers of the night before.

Love for good music is associated with a cultural background and yet an aged hostler, born in that section of upper Fifth avenue once known as Shantytown, saves and scrimps to attend the opera and the symphony concerts in Carnegie Hall.

Al Jolson, best known as a mammy song singer, incidentally, is a steady patron of the opera when time permits. Hundreds of chorus girls are also opera enthusiasts. They have entered the chorus as the starting point toward their goal—grand opera. Indeed almost everyone who has a passably good singing voice builds air castles of playing romantic roles in opera, although few will admit it.

Five chilli con carne stands in the Times Square district have closed in the past year. Gastronomic experts say it is not because the dish is not well cooked, but climatic conditions do not create an appetite for it.

Air Mail

By DR. FRANK CRANE

We often hear the assertion that America is far behind Europe in flying.

Colonel Lindbergh, however, said on his return from Paris that "Europe looks with reverence on the American air mail service."

Of course much attention has been devoted in the public prints to stunt flying, air races, etc. Fliers have competed in a race to Honolulu and across the ocean. But the Government has steadily gone ahead and is covering the country with a network of air mail lines which operate in all kinds of weather and at all seasons of the year.

The first air mail route established was in the Washington-New York line on May 18, 1918.

Long flights, however, were more practical than short ones because so much time was spent in the short flights in taking the mail from the air fields to the postoffice for distribution.

In 1921 the first transcontinental lines were established. At first there was no night flying. The planes would fly as far as they could during the daytime and take up the pouches again in the morning.

In 1922, however, the government began studying night flying and experimenting in beacons, lighthouses, etc. Many air mail pilots, Col. Lindbergh among them, were called on for advice.

In the summer of 1923 a lighted airway was established over Wyoming. There were no great cities to guide the way.

In August, 1923, trips were made from New York to San Francisco in 26 hours, as opposed to the train time of 90 hours. After many successful flights the time was found to be under 20 hours, or one-third of the railroad time.

In July, 1924, the rate for mail was fixed at 24 cents an ounce between New York and San Francisco, but later this was reduced to 20 cents an ounce.

The next step was regular air mail service overnight between New York and Chicago. In February, 1926, the government closed a contract with a commercial company for transporting mail by air between Detroit and Cleveland on one route and between Detroit and Chicago on another.

On July 1 the government went out of this business and began to let contracts to private companies. Now the whole country is interlaced by these companies with contract air lines.

The line from New York to San Francisco with its various branch lines totals thousands of miles. The mail leaves New York regularly at 11 in the morning and gets to San Francisco at 4:20 the next afternoon.

Work

HAVE you a worry time does not dull, have you an old, grim grief, something no passage of years can lull to rest with their blest relief? Pleasure can hide for a little while ghosts of such griefs as these, just for the space of her swift, sweet smile bringing glad harmonies. Have you a longing no goals assuage, burning your soul like fire? Love, for its hour on life's changeful stage banishes vain desire! Pleasure and love and their gay, bright train gladden the heart today; work, though, brings blessings that do not wane, wealth that defies decay. Work is the staff that can never break, lean on it how you will. Have you a sorrow, a loss, an ache? Work, and be thankful still!

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

A NOTED foreign scientific society decided to present Edison with a medal. A representative called at the laboratory in high silk hat and frock coat. Edison was in the midst of an important experiment. He was dirty and perspiring and stripped almost to the skin. After much persuasion he accepted the medal.

LIKE all great thinkers, Edison concentrates his thought intensely on whatever subject happens to be uppermost in his mind. He is oblivious to all surroundings—"absent minded," as we commonly call it. In this state of mind he left a medal, which he had just received, on a New York ferryboat.

ON another occasion, a visitor brought him a medal from one of the many organizations which have so honored him. Asked whether he had any others, Edison replied, "Oh, yes, I have a couple of quarts more up at the house." This would seem to indicate that Edison does not appreciate his honors, but—

ON the contrary, Edison prizes his medals and tokens of esteem very highly. A few of these appear above. Besides the medals there is a beautiful cigar-case from the Czar of Russia, bronzes from the Government of Japan, trophies from Krupp, and paintings by Sarah Bernhardt.
